Marchers Clash With Police In South Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Open housing marchers, singing "Oh Freedom," marched out of the heavily Polish-American South Side Saturday night after a demonstration marred by clashes with police.

At least six persons, including two white men, were arrested. There were two injured, including one policeman.

A straggly band of white youths followed the marchers for most of their more than five-hour march through the virtually all-white section that had erupted with bricks, stones and slurs in demonstrations last week. There were only minor incidents Saturday between the demonstrators and the hecklers who turned out in only a fraction of the thousands that had greeted earlier marches.

But police moved in on demonstrators. The first incident occurred after a white man and two Negroes began fighting. Police entered the fray with night sticks flying. Shortly afterwards on the same block, a police van tried to move into an alley but the demonstrators blocked the path. Police rushed the line to force the opening. The final incident occurred when a Negro began swearing at a policeman. The officer rushed the line and pulled the man out. A scuffle ensued in the middle of the street before the man was finally subdued.

The hecklers, fewer than 100 during most of the march, kept up a constant stream of obscenities and insults at the marchers and the Rev. James E. Groppi, the white Roman Catholic priest who serves as adviser to the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Police estimated the number of marchers at about 700.

The demonstrators kept newsmen from getting too close to the line.

One television cameraman was grabbed and pushed out of the line.

"Come on, get in here," one demonstrator yelled to a newsman, "so I can beat your brains out."

The march began after a Mass in which Father Groppi prayed for strength and courage.

Wisconsin's National Guard announced Friday it would have about 150 military policemen at State Fair Park in nearby West Allis for "riot control training," but guard officials said the training had been ordered by the Pentagon and had nothing to do with the current tense racial situation.

Saturday marked the 13th straight day of demonstrations and marches headed by the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Congress Still Faces Major Tasks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the 90th Congress, returning to work Monday after a 10-day Labor Day recess, still must grapple with nearly all of President Johnson's major recommendations for the 1967 session.

When Congress convened last January its leaders talked of final adjournment by Labor Day, but now they cannot see an end to the session before Thanksgiving.

So far, the 90th has been bogged down in endless talk about the Vietnam war and in handling such matters as censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., and a threatened nationwide rail strike.

The Senate devoted 13 weeks to a congressional reorganization bill, which the House appears likely to shelve, and to killing a bitterly disputed plan enacted last year for government financing of presidential campaigns. Action has been completed on only two of the top recommendations made by Johnson in his State of the Union message Jan. 10.

One of these was Senate ratification of the consular treaty with Russia. The other was the draft extension bill, which had a June 30 deadline; but, even on this, Congress did not give the chief executive the revised system he asked. Several of his other proposals already have been abandoned by administration lieutenants at the Capitol.

But they remain hopeful that the President will get a dozen major bills before Congress quits.

These include: Social Security increases, extension of the elementary and secondary school act, and crime in the streets legislation — passed by the House but not the Senate; also, a "truth-in-lending" bill, and air (Turn To Page Four)

Order Risky Soft Landing For Surveyor 5

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists decided late Saturday to take a calculated risk and land America's trouble-plagued Surveyor 5 spacecraft on the moon despite a malfunction.

The aim was a soft landing necessary to protect its soil-testing equipment and camera. If a soft landing Sunday afternoon is impossible, the spaced craft would smash against the moon and destroy itself.

Scientists said the only real alternative to attempting the lunar landing would be to orbit the 2,200-pound spacecraft around the earth — an alternative of little scientific value, a spokesman said.

"It's a lunar spacecraft and the object is to land it on the moon," the Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesman said.

As the fifth Surveyor hurtled through space toward its planned landing site in the Sea of Tranquility 221,575 miles from earth, scientists performed mid-course maneuvers by radar to keep the spacecraft on course.

Destroy Three MIGs In Raid Over North

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force pilots flew through "numerous MIGs" Saturday to bomb the Kep air base northeast of Hanoi and reported destroying three MIG17s on the ground, the U.S. Command said.

Although pilots sighted "numerous MIGs" aloft, only one brief aerial encounter took place, and there was no report of either side scoring a hit, U.S. headquarters said.

The American Thunderchief and Phantom jets pounded the main Kep runway, and pilots said an oil explosion and three fires on the west end of the base sent smoke rising 1,000 feet.

Kep is 38 miles northeast of Hanoi and has been battered by American warplanes in repeated raids. The last raid on the base was Sept. 3.

Headquarters said at least seven MIGs were on the field at the time of Saturday's strike. Pilots said the main runway was unserviceable afterward.

In the southern end of North Vietnam, U.S. B52 bombers unloaded tons of bombs Sunday on North Vietnamese artillery positions that have been shelling U.S. Marines across the demilitarized zone. It was the second day in a row that the Stratoforters have bombed targets inside North Vietnam.

The raid north followed two B52 strikes Saturday night in the same embattled sector. In one of the raids the giant bombers struck just north of the DMZ. In the other, they pounded mortar and artillery positions and bunkers inside the zone.

The raids were a continuation of the daily B12 assaults in and near the DMZ for the past three weeks.

U.S. warships and bombers have blasted gun emplacements on a North Vietnamese cape six miles above the demilitarized zone where the Communist forces may be massed for a new offensive, the U.S. Command said Saturday.

But speculation in Saigon was that the North Vietnamese buildup of coastal and anti-aircraft gun emplacements on Cape Mai was ordered in fear of a possible allied amphibious assault there.

In South Vietnam, a brisk fight flared early Sunday in the Central Highlands eight miles east of Pleiku City, near the Cambodian border.

An enemy force of unknown size attacked a battery of the U.S. Army's 52nd Artillery Regiment and was repulsed with 17 of the attackers killed, the U.S. Command said. Headquarters said seven U.S. artillerymen were wounded.

The U.S. Command also reported a three-hour clash Saturday nine miles northwest of Bong Son in the Central Highlands near the east coast. In the action, units of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division reported killing 10 enemy soldiers while losing their own casualties as two wounded.

Barrier Must Close Ho Trail To Be Effective

An AP News Analysis By ROBERT D. OHMAN Associated Press Writer

DANANG, Vietnam (AP) — A barrier of barbed wire and electronic eyes and ears along the northern rim of South Vietnam — how effective would it be against North Vietnamese infiltrating forces?

The evidence here is that U.S. Marines dug in and patrolling south of the demilitarized zone which divides the two Vietnams already are keeping out any major Communist force.

The chief infiltration route is not through the demilitarized zone, but over the old Ho Chi Minh Trail. This runs around South Vietnam's northwestern corner and southward through neighboring Laos and Cambodia. It has branches that cut into South Vietnam at points along the way. To be effective, such a wall as announced by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in Washington Thursday would have to run not only along the rugged mountain terrain of the northern rim, but also more than 100 miles south along the border of Laos.

Military men here are maintaining public silence on McNamara's announcement. But one Marine commander commented: "I wish him a lot of luck." The first, relatively easy, step in "McNamara's Wall"—as it is being called here—has been taken. Between April 12 and June 24, U.S. Marine and South Vietnamese engineers scraped out a 600-yard wide clearing from the Leatherneck artillery base at Gio Linh west to the Marine stronghold at Con Thien, a distance of seven miles roughly paralleling the DMZ.

The Vietnamese army cleared some areas in the five miles between Gio Linh and the sea but the terrain there is mostly sand and salt flats anyway.

There has been no evidence that this defensive strip has been greatly effective to date.

When work first began on that seven-mile stretch in April, many U.S. Marine commanders were critical. They said such a line would lock a large force of men into defensive positions and deny them the mobility that has been the keystone in the allied campaign against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units. The seven-mile zone was completed at a cost to the Marines of about 200 dead and 1,000 wounded in mortar and artillery barrages and security sweeps.

If a barrier could be completed and properly manned along the 40 miles between North and South Vietnam, it undoubtedly would stifle any major infiltration. Radar and electronic devices plus barbed wire and mines could detect and stall enemy units until defense force could be deployed to meet them. It is questionable, however, if North Vietnam has been able to develop any high rate of infiltration through the DMZ.

Although no breakdown was available here on the estimated number of North Vietnamese infiltrators using the various routes, the Ho Chi Minh Trail is still considered to be the number one highway for North Vietnamese soldiers going south.

McNamara told his Washington news conference the electronic detection system would be installed late this year or early next year. He did not make clear, however, if he was talking about installation just along the seven-mile section already completed or if he was talking about completion of a strip along the remaining rugged 30 miles to Laos.

Experts in Washington indicated the barrier would be an early warning system rather than a solid obstacle, McNamara was purposely vague in discussing the plans.

South Vietnam's President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu stressed in an interview just after McNamara's announcement that the barrier would be only in South Vietnamese territory, "not across the border of Laos."

A barrier could be run along the Laos border inside South Vietnam, but it would increase the distance and thus the cost. Also it would not sever the Ho Chi Minh Trail, as one in Laos

Hurricane Beulah Takes Fifteen Lives

Thunders Toward Dominican

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Killer hurricane Beulah — already blamed with 15 deaths—thundered through the Caribbean Saturday night threatening Puerto Rico and headed toward a direct collision with the Dominican Republic. The deadly storm's 125-mile an hour winds sent hurricane and gale warnings up on parts of Puerto Rico and a huge chunk of the Dominican Republic.

Far out in the Atlantic, 1,500 miles east-southeast of Bermuda, tropical storm Chloe blew into a hurricane with highest winds estimated at 80 m.p.h., and tropical storm Doria sprang up just off Florida's east coast.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center at Miami predicted hurricane force winds for the extreme southwestern portion of Puerto Rico and said high winds and heavy rains—bringing a threat of flash floods—would cover much wider areas of the island.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at San Juan, Puerto Rico, ordered hurricane warnings hoisted along the Puerto Rican coast from the city of Cabo Rojo southward to Mona Island, and ordered gale warnings extended from Cabo Rojo northward to Aguadilla.

"The hurricane is expected to pass about 40 miles southwest of Cabo Rojo which will be its nearest approach to Puerto Rico," the Weather Bureau said.

It said San Juan could expect heavy rains and gusty winds. But the Dominican Republic appeared to be in the most danger from Beulah.

At 9 p.m. a hurricane bulletin urged Dominican Republic residents to rush precautions and said "Beulah is expected to strike about noon Sunday in the vicinity of Isla Saona and continue northwest with destructive force."

Haiti, an economically poor Negro nation which has been devastated many times by hurricanes, was under a hurricane watch. Haiti lies to the west of the Dominican Republic on the island of Hispaniola.

At 9 p.m. (EDT), Beulah was within range of land-based radar which located her center at latitude 16.9 north, longitude 66.9 west, or about 120 miles south-southwest of San Juan, the capital of Puerto Rico. The storm was moving at 10 m.p.h. to the northwest with gale winds extending out 125 miles in all directions.

Beulah is blamed with killing 13 persons on the island of Martinique and two on St. Vincent.

Five children were among those killed on Martinique as Beulah struck that French island Friday with 85 m.p.h. winds and torrential rains. Many homes were destroyed, flood waters coursed down city streets, and banana plantations were hard hit.

Rains triggered landslides on St. Vincent which blocked many roads. A boulder dislodged by the storm rolled downhill and crashed into a house, killing two children. The island's upper house of government was inundated by a mud slide.

Chloe was several days away from the nearest land, but tropical storm Doria sprang up about 90 miles east of Melbourne, Fla., near latitude 28.0 north and longitude 79.0 west. Doria's highest winds were estimated at 50 m.p.h. in squall east of the center. Forecasters predicted slow intensification and called for a slow north drift Saturday night and Sunday.

UAW Begins Drive To Rally Support

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers leaders Sunday began a drive to rally their nonstriking rank-and-file in support of what is increasingly expected to be months-long strike by 159,000 UAW members at Motor Co.

The strikers drew their last full paycheck Friday with no new negotiations scheduled on a labor contract.

An Associated Press sampling indicated that strikers expected the walkout to last from several weeks to several months. Some thought the deadlock might last until next year.

"I just wish everybody a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," cracked John Metcalf, a 14-year Ford employee, in reply to a newsman's question in Dallas, Tex.

Meanwhile, bargaining at General Motors and Chrysler was postponed for two weeks because the union leaders who handle the contract talks will be busy meeting with local union leaders across the nation next week.

Nearly 500,000 UAW members are working without contracts at GM and Chrysler, which have said they will honor most of the provisions of the three-year pacts which expired with Ford's at Wednesday midnight.

The union, however, has been handed the task of collecting its dues, and the meetings in coming days with top UAW officials will be aimed at setting up a dues collection system. They also will review the situation in contract negotiations the UAW said, and urge support for Ford strikers. The meetings are seen as a prelude to an 8 UAW convention which is expected to increase dues payments to beef up the union chest, which stood at $1 million when the Ford strike began.

Negotiating subcommittee meetings are set for Monday which will be the sixth day of the strike, and plans are expected to be made then on Ford contract bargaining to be resumed.

Most striking union members contacted by The Associated Press said they were willing to endure a long strike, and expected one.

On a Detroit picket line, McDermott, 27, married another of three children, said "That last paycheck looked pretty good compared to we figure is coming. If we're willing to lose everything and start again."

Miss Kansas Is Selected Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Debra Dene Barnes, a blue-eyed brunette from Kansas who just turned 20, was named Miss America of 1968 Saturday night.

Debra, who wants to be a professor of music, plays piano, organ, trumpet and French horn and played a piano selection in the talent competition.

A junior at Kansas State College at Pittsburg, Debra celebrated her 20th birthday on Wednesday and commented, "I'm an old woman of 20 now."

Miss America stands 5-foot-9, weighs 135 pounds and measures 36½-24-36½.

She is the 10th straight brunette to win the coveted beauty crown. Debra hails from Moran, in the Kansas wheat area, and loves cooking and baking, with chocolate cake her favorite creation.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dwight O. Barnes.

Open Astrobug Satellite After 45-Hour Space Ride

HONOLULU (AP)—Scientists took a peek into the beehive-shaped "Astrobug" satellite Saturday and appeared pleased with their first glimpse at billions of specimens which completed a 45-hour ride through space.

"Things are going very well inside the capsule," said Dr. Frederic J. De Seres, the first scientist to take a look inside the 280-pound capsule. Several hours earlier, an Air Force C130 Hercules recovered the capsule 1,000 miles south of Hawaii.

"Everything is perfectly normal inside the capsule," Dr. De Seres, of the Oak Ridge, Tenn., National Laboratory, added.

"There is no evidence of any radiation leakage nor any condensation."

The capsule was flown to a temporary National Aeronautics and Space Administration Laboratory at Hickam Air Force Base at Honolulu.

About 100 scientists began studying results of the space experiment at the air base.

Farm Revolution Expands

The technological revolution which has transformed American agriculture is continuing. There are indications that the pace of change in the immediate future may be even swifter than during the past few decades.

Some hints as to the nature of possible developments can be gained from reports made at a meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at Texas A. & M. University. Speakers told of various sensing techniques which some day will swiftly provide a wide range of information about crops, soil conditions, and so forth.

These advanced techniques involve use of many such things as radar, highly specialized photographic heat-measuring devices. In many cases they were developed for military purposes. Now scientists are turning them to the task of producing bigger and better crops with less manpower.

At present, for example, the government keeps tabs on crops by a laborious system of reports from county agents and the Soil Conservation Service. In the future, speakers at the Texas conference said, this might be done through periodic radar and photographic sweeps—by aircraft or in some cases satellites. It was noted that at 400 miles an hour a continuous-image radar system covering a swath 20 miles wide "could completely image the state of Kansas in 12 hours of flying time."

A great variety of information could be obtained by sensing techniques—the progress of field preparation and planting, crop acreages, the progress of harvesting, and so on. We seem to be on the verge of an important step in America's agricultural revolution.

Affronts On TV

Recently the National Association of Broadcasters advised its member stations not to use a commercial—it advertised a motion picture about LSD—including two nude scenes. The Code authority was cited: the promotion was said to be an affront to "good taste, community attitudes, and responsibility to children." The NAB expressed growing concern with exposure of questionable material likely to "glamorize or excite interest in the subject."

The point is well taken, but it does not go far enough. The primary concern of the Association appears to be with hallucinatory drugs. What of the effects of other types of anti-social behavior glamorized on TV—killing, torture, the indiscriminate use of firearms? Has the "frontier spirit" where everything goes short of dope addiction become so acceptable that the violence portrayed is too commonplace to arouse equal objection?

Recent rioting and other tragic incidents—most notably, of course, the assassination of President Kennedy—point up the extensive use of lethal weapons, as well as their uncontrolled sale. It is anachronistic to deplore nudity and drug addiction when the use of guns and other weapons is portrayed as a way of life. The National Association of Broadcasters should display a little more concern about the violence and other distasteful material that is presented daily on TV.

Communication

Dear Editor:

WHO HELPED WHOM?

The quiet communities of Manchester and Murrayville are usually fairly unnoteworthy, but something happened in a recent 24-hour period which deserves to be rated as news. A rural family lost all their worldly goods in a fire which leveled their home. Fortunately, no one was injured; but Sunday night found the eight homeless people taking shelter with relatives. A plea for aid was sent out by radio, telephone, and over back yard fences. By Monday night they had a completely furnished home ready for occupancy and plenty to eat and wear.

All day Monday cars and trucks crowded the drive and yard of the "new" home and each new arrival came bearing gifts. Furniture, appliances, clothing, bedding, food—even a TV and radio appeared on the scene. Money was also given and the family members were escorted to purchase new shoes and some personal items not included in the deluge of donations. The place was a veritable beehive of activity as many friends and well-wishers cleaned and scrubbed, washed windows, and hung curtains. New acquaintances were made over rug-laying and furniture placing. The "woman hanging clothes in the closet" and the "girls washing dishes" became first-name friends though they had never met before. Men carried furniture and installed cabinets, some went with trucks to bring offered items, some from as far as Ashland. The whole household of people worked with every indication of enjoying it, and it was pretty obvious that all those who had come to help were actually being benefited themselves by the spirit of working for a common cause—the welfare of deserving folks who had met an unfortunate circumstance.

Though Monday is traditionally wash day, and this particular Monday was Labor Day, a number of folks worked thru their entire holiday from regular places of employment. There was no sign that anyone considered it anything other than time well spent—from the grateful recipients on thru every worker present. Labor Day, yes, but a labor of love in proof that indeed God is not dead, and while headlines scream of hate and selfishness, there remains a remnant of hope when the "helped" become the "helper."

If "news" means something different, then it is the opinion of this humble observer that the above account is worthy of mention.

It's Always Open Season On Foot-In-Mouth Guys

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — As the election year draws nearer and nearer, political ins are being reminded by advisers about the pre-election phase called "watchwhatyousay."

A president, for example, must be extremely careful during this phase. The outs and possibly even a few ins are watching, listening for the merest goof, any statement or act which can be used to make political hay.

So any presidential utterance must be cleverly conceived. It must make a point but it can't leave holes for the outs to fill.

In July in St. Louis, President Johnson appeared to have come up with the ultimate put-down when he was quoted, "The worst Democrat is better for the country than the best Republican."

But Republicans leaped:

"Mr. President, you don't elaborate. Are you referring to Bobby Baker, Adam Clayton Powell, Tom Dodd or George Wallace?"

Can't win for losing news:

President Johnson was making a serious statement about crime in the country and thus wasn't playing the barb game.

He got one, anyway, off a newspaper headline. The headline read: "LBJ Says Crime Second Biggest U.S. Headache."

"That Lyndon!" said a GOP wit on Capitol Hill, "he always wants to be first."

A reporter here was chatting long distance to an aide of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

"Say, have you heard some of Barry Goldwater's recent comments favorable to your boss?" the reporter asked.

"Come again?" the Romney aide said. "Something must be wrong with the connection. I'll call you back."

From the tone of a press release from a Mexican-American political group, it seems safe to conclude that most Mexican-Americans don't like California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"There is not much doubt Reagan will run for president of the United States," the release reads. "God help us if he makes it."

"He might bring back with him, streetcars with horses and bubonic plague. Ronnie has an 'expired soul' (no tiane alma), and what's left of him is dedicated to balancing figures and meeting with the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce."

"This man will put civilization back 87 years."

Eighty-seven years?

Job Growth Trends To Service Trades

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — With job skills escalating rapidly and automation advancing apace, it has seemed there could hardly be a worse time to try to find work for hundreds of thousands of untrained Negroes.

A few years ago, a science magazine editor named Gerard Piel accurately calculated that, out of a then total work force just above 70 million, barely 12 million Americans were directly engaged in the production of manufactured goods.

Furthermore, Piel predicted that by the year 2000, factory workers in the United States may be as scarce as farmers. At the time of writing, the number of U.S. farmers was down to six million.

His forecast, then, was that fewer and fewer people, in absolute numbers, would be producing more and more goods for America.

At the moment, however, the prophecy looks faulty. Labor Department figures for 1966 show that the country is currently employing some 14.2 million workers directly in production, a gain of more than two million over the level (for 1961) noted by Piel.

Labor Department officials suggest Piel may have been reading as long-range signs what were in fact the marks of a slump which was ending even as he wrote. The trend in manufacturing employment has been upward now for a number of years.

To the extent that the rise in factory jobs means the availability of some at the low-skill end of the ladder, the situation is somewhat more hopeful for the employment of untrained Negroes who today swell the unemployed ranks alarmingly.

Yet the long-range prognosis is really not all that bright. Automation and improvements in worker techniques are, of course, going to continue at high rate.

In 1965, the average U.S. employee turned out goods and services in one hour which were worth $4.18. In terms of 1960 prices, by the year 2000 the comparable figure is estimated by the National Planning Association as likely to be $10.50.

Even with greatly expanding population, therefore, the relative demand for production workers will, it is expected, have declined in percentage terms if not in absolute numbers.

The NPA evidently defines manufacturing workers more inclusively than did Piel. It puts their percentage of the total work force today at around 25. NPA's figures are useful as a forecast, and they suggest that by 2000 the percentage will be down to 18.

The interesting thing is that this change is indicated even though it is also anticipated that the work week will by then have shrunk to only about three-fourths of its present length. A 31-hour week is looked for.

NPA's crystal-gazing suggests that in about 15 years considerably more Americans will be engaged in the service trades than in goods-making. And by the turn of the century, as many people may be employed in federal, state and local government as will be employed by manufacturing firms.

So, if the focus is put just on factory jobs, the immediate outlook for Negro opportunities may be better than seemed likely a few years ago — but the long-range prospect is still not cheerful.

If, though, the expansion of government is looked at along with the continuing rise of service trade employment, there may be more reason for hope. The need may be less to break down factory jobs into low-skill segments than to invent, deliberately on an unprecedented scale, hundreds of thousands of new service jobs to absorb the legions of unemployed. This is where the growth is, anyway.

Ann Landers:

How Lucky Can You Get?

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You must be cracking up. Your answer to the girl whose boy friend left her flat when she told him she was pregnant was the last straw. What makes you think ALL boys are heels and will run out on a girl when she is in trouble?

Three months ago the same thing happened to me. I thought I was pregnant and told my boy friend. He was just wonderful. He said, "Don't you worry about a thing, honey. I will give you $100 and arrange for a first-class abortion."

It turned out that I was not pregnant. But I wanted you to know that my boy friend came through like a perfect gentleman. I dare you to print this. — GEMINI

Dear Gem: How lucky can you get — a great boy friend who was willing to give you $100 and let you risk your life in the hands of some butcher — and then you weren't even pregnant! Why don't you get smart before your luck changes?

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter, now 21, attended a morning wedding recently. Sherri left the house at 10:00 a.m. She said she might be home "a little late."

As the hours went by — midnight, 2 a.m., 3 a.m., 4 a.m. — my husband and I became worried. By eight o'clock the following morning we were frantic. We telephoned one of Sherri's girl friends to learn when our daughter was last seen. The girl said Sherri and her boy friend, Carl, and two other couples had left the wedding celebration before midnight. They said they were going into town to dance.

My husband called the others, only to learn that they had dropped off Sherri and Carl at 2:00 a.m., where he had parked his car. We then phoned Carl's parents and learned that he hadn't been home all night either.

At 9 a.m. Sherri telephoned to say she and Carl were at his parents' house having breakfast. She was furious with us for calling all over town to locate her. She says a girl who is going on 22 years of age should not need to account for her whereabouts and that we humiliated her.

I would like to add, the girl is living at home and we are supporting her. What are your views? — TORONTO

Dear Toronto: My views are that you have a very inconsiderate, self-centered daughter who ought to be told in no uncertain terms that, regardless of her age, as long as she lives with you, she has an obligation to let you know where she is.

Of course, it's awkward for a young lady to telephone her parents and say "I am spending the night with my boy friend," which was her real hang-up. But that's another letter, my friends.

Confidential to A House Divided: I am with you, Mother. A knuckle sandwich is no solution for trouble with a 16-year-old boy who has been sassy

DOWNER'S GROVE, ILL.: Ten persons were killed near here Thursday in head-on collision of this station wagon and a convertible. Nine of the victims were in the station wagon. They included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hoffmeister and their five children, all of nearby Woodridge. Two adults riding with them also died in the wreckage. They are Mr. and Mrs. John Brubaker, of Virden, Mrs. Hoffmeister's parents. The victim in the convertible was identified as Ralph Kusnier of nearby Lisle, Ill. (See adjoining story.) (UPI Telephoto)

Rites For Seven Killed In Crash At Downers Grove

WOODRIDGE, Ill. (AP)—The swings hung limp and idle in the back yard of the Hoffmeister home today.

The sandbox was empty. Don and Robert Hoffmeister, both of Springfield, Ill., had arrived at the home in Chicago's west suburban region. Their brother, Ralph, was en route from Baltimore.

Their thoughts went back to another—and far, far different—reunion in July in Springfield. They had gathered then for celebration of the 40th wedding anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hoffmeister.

The brothers spoke, too, of a reunion Monday—again, in Springfield, but this time the occasion will be a funeral Mass at 9 a.m. in St. Agnes Church.

The final rites will be for the seven Hoffmeisters who lived in the house in Woodridge—Arthur Hoffmeister and his wife, Paula, and their five children, ranging in age from 1 to 6. They and Mrs. Hoffmeister's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P.

Brubaker of Virden, Ill., were killed in a head-on collision Thursday night in Downers Grove.

Police said a car driven by Ralph J. Kusnier, 43, of Lisle, went out of control and smashed into the Hoffmeister station wagon.

At the suggestion of neighbors a Mass will be said for the Hoffmeisters at 3 p.m. Sunday at St. Joan of Arc Church in Lisle, a nearby suburban community.

The loss of 10 lives in an accident involving two automobiles was topped only once in Illinois. A collision killed 11 persons near Benson, Ill. For the nation as a whole, the high mark for a two-car crash is 13, recorded in Clayton, Minn.

The deaths of the Hoffmeisters had one other statistical footnote. The record of Kusnier showed he had been arrested once for drunken driving and three times for speeding.

GREENFIELD AT CLARE GREENE

GREENFIELD—Funeral services for Clare Greene, of Mt. Morris, Mich., who died at the McLaren hospital in Flint, Mich., Monday, were conducted at the Shields Memorial Home in Greenfield, Friday afternoon. Sept. 9. Mrs. Martin D. Roth and Mrs. Claude E. Linn sang, accompanied by Mrs. S. W. Thornton at the organ.

Interment was in Oak Wood cemetery. Rev. Leroy Sanders officiating. The casketbearers: Keith Cole, Lewis Hall, Earl Converse, Barney Elmore, Charles E. Burroughs, William R. Stringer, Clarence Tacy and Hal Langley.

GREENE COUNTY PETIT JURY CONVENES MONDAY

CARROLLTON — The Greene County Petit Jury will convene at 10 a.m. Monday, Sept. 11.

The men of the Methodist Men's Fellowship of the Jerseyville group will hold their quarterly dinner and meeting at Kane Methodist church Friday, Sept. 8th.

Gene Wagener, president of Pruitt Motor Co., Inc. and Gene Willis, salesman, recently attended a meeting at Kiel Auditorium where the full line of Dodge cars and trucks for 1968 were shown.

Triple Funeral Rites Today For Accident Victims

JERSEYVILLE — Triple funeral services will be held Sunday, September 10 at 2 p.m. from Jacoby Brothers Funeral Home in Jerseyville for Gerald Dean Jackson, 36; his daughter Bonnie, 14, and his brother, Ronnie Jackson, 17, all of Greene County, who were killed in a pickup truck accident about 7:55 p.m. Thursday on Illinois Route 267 not far from the Macoupin Creek bridge, eight miles north of Jerseyville in Greene county.

The three were passengers in a pickup truck driven by James Retherford of Carrollton, RFD, Retherford, 47, and the driver of the car involved in the head-on collision, Richard Probst, 22, of Carrollton, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Alton, where their condition was listed as critical. The other accident victims were taken to Boyd Memorial Hospital in Carrollton where they were pronounced dead one hour later at 8:55 p.m.

The Jackson brothers are survived by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Jackson of Greenfield; four brothers, Leroy and Russell of Jerseyville; Bobbie of Athensville; Glen of Greenfield; five sisters, Mrs. Dale Rembey of Rockbridge; Mrs. Donald Bain of Jerseyville; Mrs. Sherman Devening of Jerseyville; Mrs. Jerome Gress of Hamburg and Linda at home.

Gerald Dean Jackson is also survived by his widow, Hazel Irene Jackson of Eldred. His daughter Bonnie Dean Jackson died in the accident with her father.

At the funeral services for the three accident victims here Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Ollie Phillips of Livingston will officiate, and interment will be in the Oak Grove cemetery in this city.

The Living Gift By Humans To Their Fellowmen

Blood—the living gift which only one human can give another — has helped save many lives in Morgan County.

All but a small fraction of the units of blood collected by the American Red Cross for civilian use is distributed to hospitals as whole blood or packed red cells.

A unit of blood has become more than a unit of blood. It is a raw material that can now be separated into four or more fractions to help patients suffering from a variety of diseases.

The new technique is rapidly replacing the traditional means of giving blood transfusions.

The Red Cross, which has been promoting the idea, with the enthusiastic endorsement of the medical profession, says an increasing amount of the blood it handles is processed by the new method. The technique yields several products.

Packed red cells, which are better than whole blood in most cases where transfusions are required.

Blood platelets, which can be used to prolong the lives of persons suffering from leukemia and other diseases caused by deficiencies.

Plasma, the fluid part of the blood in which the platelets and red and white cells are suspended.

By using components we get maximum mileage out of every unit of blood and provide what the patient lacks and needs.

Plastic bags which have replaced the glass bottle, can be rigged up to allow the separation of the blood components in a closed system, not possible with bottles.

The next visit of the Bloodmobile will be Monday, September 11, 1:00 to 6:00 p.m., at the AMVET Post 100 on East Court Street in Jacksonville.

The Bloodmobile will visit Morgan County each second Monday of each month. Give the gift of life. The benefits are great.

Fourteen units of blood will be needed for an open heart surgery for E. Wayne Jumper on September 20th. The donations for this will be accepted at the September 11 Bloodmobile visit.

Jeffrey Sykes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sykes was admitted Aug. 30, for treatment of a knee injury received at school.

Mrs. Otis I. Neighbors was admitted Aug. 31, as a medical patient.

Grover L. Wyatt of this city, was admitted Aug. 31, as a medical patient.

Rex Allen Michaels, 9 months old son of Mrs. Stella Michaels of White Hall, was admitted Sept. 3rd, as a medical patient.

Mrs. Donald Vinyard of this city, was admitted Sept. 4th, as a medical patient.

A daughter was born Sept. 4th, to Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Isham of this city, named Tammy Sue, weight 7 pounds 1 1/2 ounces.

Charles Bennett of Roodhouse, was admitted Sept. 4th, as a medical patient.

Mrs. Benjamin Stauffer of Roodhouse, was admitted Sept. 5th, as a medical patient.

William Settles of White Hall, was admitted Sept. 5th, as a medical patient.

John Francis Dolan of Roodhouse, was admitted Sept. 5th, as a medical patient.

Mrs. Thera Singleton was admitted Sept. 6th, as a medical patient.

WWI Vets In Morgan Plan Reunion

The above picture, which was taken on Christmas Day, 1917, at Camp Pike, Little Rock, Arkansas, will bring back memories for many World War One veterans. The photo was supplied by J. J. Schenz of this city who is pictured third from left in the back row. The group includes members of Company K, 346th Infantry, 87th division, who tried out and organized a baseball team at the Camp. The successful group later won Battalion honor, but lost out in the Regimental play-off to Company Headquarters. Schenz was the third baseman.

All is now in readiness for the golden anniversary and get-together for all Morgan County World War One veterans to be held at the American Legion Home in Jacksonville on Sunday, Sept. 24th.

The reunion will be held from 12 noon to 6 p.m. with Open House to honor the men who fought for their country fifty years ago.

There will be free eats and a variety of drinks, plus plenty of entertainment. The committee suggests that veterans "spend a day with their buddies before the final sounding of taps. Hear and sing the songs of 50 years ago and talk over old times. There may never be a time like this again for you.

"Bring your pills, crutches or canes, you may need them. Sign your name, title or rank in the Souvenir Book and get your Anniversary Lapel Pin before you view and enjoy the anniversary birthday cake.

"There will be free transportation for all needing same and also ambulance service for anyone unable to make the trip by taxi. There will also be a registered nurse on duty."

Any Morgan county World War One Veteran is cordially welcome regardless of having membership in any organization or club. Those wishing to make arrangements for free transportation should call 245-2144 or 245-2213.

NICHOLS PARK LADIES DAY GOLF NEWS

The annual Nichols Park Ladies Golf Association Banquet was held Tuesday, September 5, at Blackhawk. Members of the association and Bill and Betty Lynn enjoyed a delicious dinner before awarding the golf prizes for the season.

Silver trays were presented by Bill Lynn to Fran Chumley and Marge Howard, winner and runner-up in the tournament Della Birdsell and Lucy James also received silver trays for winner and runner-up in the consolation bracket.

Statistics proved that Fran Chumley was the winner of the most golf balls this season followed by Marge Howard and Evelyn Cruzan in the first flight. Ginny Olson, Ruby Brummitt and Lorraine Buchanan were the top three winners in the second flight.

Surprise prizes were given to each member in attendance upon recalling a funny incident of the past season, in which they were involved. One example I can recall was Betty Taylor receiving a prize for having to play two balls on partner Bingle - Bangle - Bungle day. Keota Shouse was rewarded for her creek incident, and others were reminded of things which I'm sure they would just as soon forget.

I was certainly surprised, to the least, to have been elected "Lady Golfer of the Year." As I read over the qualifications which I suggested that each member think about before voting I wonder just how come I was selected. Nevertheless I was presented a gift certificate from the Pro Shop, which I appreciate very much.

The door prize, a pair of golf shoes, was won by Sharon McGlasson. Every golfer should have two new pairs of shoes per season, right Sharon!

Officers elected for the 1968 Golf Season were: Evelyn Cruzan, president; Lucille Eberhardt, secretary-treasurer; Lucy James, publicity chairman and Edna Greenler and Betty Price, rules.

Following the business meeting, president Marge Howard, presented Betty Lynn with the centerpiece and Bill Lynn a gift certificate. Evelyn Cruzan, Lucille Eberhardt and Edna Greenler were presented floral arrangements in appreciation for their work this past season. Evelyn Cruzan presented president Marge Howard with a gift certificate and I'm not sure just why! Marilyn Schlie was given recognition for arranging all floral decorations for Guest Days and banquets the past two years. Thanks so much Marilyn, and as a token of appreciation you can read my golf magazine which comes to your address each week! (Ask Marilyn to explain?)

I personally want to take this opportunity to express my thanks to the officers and members for their cooperation and assistance. I am convinced an organization needs many good Indians and the Chief has nothing to do. This can certainly be said about our association this year. We have many new girls and old faithfuls which made my job very easy. And to you Evelyn, I can only say that you have a real fine group of officers and good Indians. Bill and Betty Lynn have been wonderful to work with this year and they are anxious to help you as well. And last, but not least, I want to thank everyone for their comments concerning my article each week. It has been fun and you have made it that way by your comments.

At this time I do will my typewriter to Lucy James that Party Line girl, who will be writing the column next season. Just remember Lucy, the first line is the hardest.

So long.

LAFAYETTE, SANDUSKY

MISHAP
Two cars sustained minor damage about ten o'clock Saturday night at the intersection of Lafayette and Sandusky.

City police reported that an eastbound auto, driven by Danny L. Dewese of 296 Westgate made a signal for a right turn, but turned left instead.

A second eastbound auto, following the Dewese auto, driven by Byron Stewart of 857 N. Prairie attempted to pass when Dewese turned into the path of the Stewart auto.

No injuries were reported, and both autos left under their own power.

DAVID POLING

The Beliefs of Malcolm X:
Racial Progress Primer?

David Poling

By DAVID POLING
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Last year Jim Fixx of McCall's magazine slid the book across the desk into my lap. "Read it," he said, "it will give you a totally different view of the Negro in America."

When Richard Burton was interviewed by Look magazine this spring, he confided that this book was regular reading for him on film location. In July, the Wall Street Journal regretted that this volume had such a prominent place on the reference shelf for history students at Princeton University. Not a week later, the New York Times asserted it was the handbook for Black Power revolutionaries. The title: "The Autobiography of Malcolm X." Right off, it seemed to be the angry foaming of a tormented Negro caught in the gangsterism of the ghetto. Then came the conversion to the Nation of Islam. The middle chapters devoted page after page to the doctrines of the Black Muslim movement and the recognition of the charismatic leadership of one Malcolm X.

Throughout, you are saturated with a constant hatred for white. About this time I wondered if my reading had been wasted and my emotions cleverly churned by this street corner preacher and his Black Nationalist tirades against America, the whites and Christianity. However, I stayed with it to the end and have discovered a different perspective on the racial climate of America the Beautiful and suggest you get your own copy with haste.

Why? Because Malcolm X is able to describe the conditions that have created the violence, warfare, murder and catastrophes that have erupted in the Negro ghetto. He also explains fully the appeal of the Black Muslim faith, his own participation in its amazing rise in membership and, finally, his break with the whole movement.

Much of the Muslim teaching reaches a moral intensity that few outsiders have heard. Said Malcolm:

"The Honorable Elijah Muhammad teaches us that black man is going around saying he wants respect. Well, the black man will never get anybody's respect until he first learns to respect his own women!"

Malcolm X describes carefully the training schedule followed by the Muslim temples on different nights of the week. (The public thinks it is judo and karate drills.)

"The fruit of Islam spends a lot more time in lectures and discussions on men and learning to be men. They deal with the responsibilities of a husband and father; what to expect of women; the rights of women; current events; why honesty, chastity are vital in a person, a home, a community and nation."

I recall that William Stringfellow suggested that Malcolm X's assassination may prove to be as great a tragedy to the American community as that of John F. Kennedy. Malcolm X was the one national leader who had the respect and loyalty of the Negro ghetto.

"I knew that the great lack of most of the big named Negro leaders was their lack of any true rapport with the ghetto Negroes. . . . I knew that the ghetto people knew that I never left the ghetto in spirit. I had a ghetto instinct. . . . I could speak and understand the ghetto's language."

Many people who have been close to the mood that ignited the firebombs of Newark and Detroit say that Malcolm X is the one man who could have stopped the snipers, quieted the gangs and initiated the dialogue between black and white that must come if we are to have racial amity.

Before his murder (which he predicted) he expressed his changed feelings toward a new vision of white-black relationships. Gone was the hatred, the plotting against white America. Instead, "I tell sincere white people, 'Work in conjunction with us—each working among our own kind.'"

"Let sincere white individuals find all other white people they can who feel as they do—and let them form their own all-white groups to work trying to convert other white people who are thinking and acting so racist. Let sincere white people teach nonviolence to white people. . . . In our mutual sincerity we might be able to show a road to the salvation of America's very soul."

(The Rev. Poling is associate editor of the Christian Herald.)

SIBA To Hold 22nd Meeting

The annual meeting of the Southern Illinois Breeding association will be held on Saturday, Sept. 16, 1967. It will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the K of C Hall in Breese, Ill.

James Mellinger, manager of Select Sires, Inc., Columbus, Ohio, will speak on "How Will Select Sires Benefit You As Members of SIBA." Charles Baldwin, sire program manager for Select Sires, will talk about "Your Sires Of The Future." The well-known Straeter Family will furnish musical entertainment and a free lunch will be served. Gold Star production awards will be presented to the ten dairymen with the highest herd production averages in the sixty county SIBA area. Open house will be held at SIBA headquarters before and after the meeting.

SIBA Unit Chairman John McGinnis of Jacksonville urges all SIBA members and farmers who own dairy or beef cattle to attend.

Abandoned Motor Vehicles—Who Wants Them?

UNWANTED—Approximately 150 unclaimed and abandoned motor vehicles clutter neighborhoods throughout Jacksonville, creating health hazards, eyesores, and potential death traps for young children, who might possibly get caught in a trunk of one of the vehicles.

WELCOME HOME FOR RATS—Although this abandoned car looks harmless, it might well be a welcome home for rats, according to Morgan County Health Department Sanitarian William Meyer. Many of these unclaimed vehicles, located in several sections of the city, are not able to be moved by property owners if they cannot locate the title.

ON CITY "PUBLIC WAY" — Many of the abandoned cars, which have been left throughout the city, are situated on what Bryce Wall terms the public way. Wall said that there are legal steps available to the city to remove the safety hazards, but many times it is impossible to locate the owner.

Many Residents Stuck With Junk

Strewn throughout the city in backyards, alleys, and even along streets are items even the junkyards won't touch.

Abandoned cars and trucks, eyesores to neighbors, health hazards to everyone, and possible death traps for children, the abandoned vehicles in many cases are virtually untouchable.

Although state statutes provide for the junking of cars, and Jacksonville has a Model Housing Code, which provides for the removal of abandoned motor vehicles within 30 days after a complaint has been filed, the story and legal entanglement is only beginning.

Many of these abandoned vehicles are inherited relics, which have been passed from property owner to property owner, and even though the car or truck may not run, the property owner who is left with them is helpless unless he holds title.

Illinois statutes maintain that any person who scraps, junks or destroys a motor vehicle, or a person who buys one for the same purpose, must send the title to the vehicle to the Secretary of State and obtain a certificate of junking.

These certificates have been increased from $1 to $2 in price, and most junkdealers will admit it is hard to realize two dollars in profit from a junked car.

Bryce Wall, city building inspector and Lawrence Taylor, housing inspector, both point out that in many cases owners of these abandoned vehicles have moved, sometimes with no forwarding address.

"This makes it impossible for a person, even though the vehicle sits on his land, to remove it until he has the title," Wall said. He further added that in many cases people will know who owns the car or truck, but they "won't take the time to run the man down to get a title."

Jacksonville's effort to deal with the problem resulted in a section of the Model Housing Code, passed in 1966, which has helped in removing several of the eyesores.

The ordinance provides that "no owner or occupant shall permit any motor vehicle which is not in a safe operating condition to remain outside of a garage or enclosure on his premises for more than thirty days and at no time is an owner or occupant permitted to have more than one such vehicle on the premises outside a garage or enclosure."

The maximum fine for such an offense is $200. To date no resident of Jacksonville has been fined.

Wall said that if a car is on the "public way" without a city sticker, the vehicle can be hauled away and the owner subject to a fine, plus having to pay for storage and towing charges.

Police Chief Charles P. Runkel commented that a customary practice followed by the police department, once the owner can be located, is to send a warning letter to the owner if the car is on the street.

City Often "Stuck" However, if the owner cannot be located, and the car is towed in, there is always the possibility that the city could get "stuck" for the bill.

This involves still another process of ridding the city of these open sores.

Both the city and county are empowered to remove unclaimed motor vehicles, but this is a costly process to either municipality.

The unclaimed vehicles can be hauled off by a sheriff or municipal officer, if an owner has not responded within 15 days after notification.

If the vehicle has been appraised at a value not exceeding $100, and the owner, or lien holder cannot be located, the officer is authorized to advertise a sale at public auction after he has held the car or truck for 30 days.

Then, after another 30-day period, if the vehicle remains unclaimed, another advertisement is placed in a newspaper setting the time, date and place of the sale.

If the vehicles are not sold within 60 days after the officer receives them, he is authorized to destroy them.

During this time period, if vehicles are stored on private property, it is costing the municipality.

Sheriff's Sale One Answer Morgan County Chief Deputy Sheriff Bob Hall said that following a sale, a purchaser is given a sheriff's title to the vehicle.

Hall said that in most instances here in Morgan county, car dealers or garages, who have stored the vehicles, buy them, thus wiping clean any storage bill incurred by the county.

Hall commented that there was another way to get rid of the unclaimed vehicles.

"Say for instance someone has an old junker. It throws a rod and the guy leaves it along the highway. We can have it hauled off as a safety hazard."

Hall said the next procedure is to have a check run through the Secretary of State's office to determine the last owner or lien holder.

Once this has been accomplished, then a letter is written informing the person what will occur unless the vehicle is picked up.

But, as in all laws, loopholes do exist.

If a property owner was ambitious, he could remove and dispose of the car or truck to a place where it would not involve any noticeable complications.

This might be on a 40-acre farm that had a deep ravine, serving as a ready-made grave.

However, if the owner should turn-up like the proverbial bad penny and begin inquiring about his relic, the property owner might be in for a lawsuit.

However, should the person wishing to junk the vehicle, obtain the title, he then must take the certificate of junking with him to whomever he finds to destroy the vehicle.

Vanishing Scene And junkyards, like titles to abandoned cars, are hard to locate.

Clifford Hungerford and Henry Bolton manage Chanan's Inc. in Jacksonville. Chanan's Inc. has junkyards in Burlington and Keokuk, Iowa, Quincy and Jacksonville.

"The Quincy and Jacksonville yards quit buying junk cars as of January first this year," Hungerford said. "There's no money in it."

Both men explained that junk dealers must be bonded by the state, (another item increased in price) and also obtain a license for destroying abandoned vehicles (also increased from $5 to $25).

"It takes three and one-half hours to clean a car for junking, and after you consider the cost of labor involved, we come out in the hole," Bolton answered.

When Chanan's was in the business of buying junk cars, the going price for uncleaned motors was $15 a ton, or $25 a ton cleaned. Car or truck bodies, if they have been through the "baler," bring $4 a ton, or $2 per ton otherwise.

Hungerford said that after labor and shipping costs, a dealer would realize "about a dollar" for a body, "give or take a few cents."

Thus, with local junkyards entirely out of the business of buying unclaimed vehicles for junking, the eyesores sit in neighborhoods and continue to create a hazard.

Homes For Rats Morgan County Health Department Sanitarian William Meyer said that a junked car is always a potential home for rodents.

"There is a strong possibility that these old abandoned vehicles are harbinger for rodents. The likelihood that junked cars contain nesting places for rats is increased if there is open garbage anywhere in the immediate area," Meyer concluded.

He further pointed out that although there have been no cases he has known of concerning children being attacked by rats while playing near a junked car, "there is always a first time."

Meyer said that prior to the inception of the state air pollution control ordinance, passed in 1965, it was possible for junk dealers to burn the interior of the cars, salvaging the remainder.

"However, since that time, it has been against the law," he related, "and the interior must be taken out by some other means."

This has slowed down the disposal of these unsightly items considerably.

Individual solutions to the problem of the abandoned and unclaimed vehicles are presently about the only answer in dealing with the removal of the junk.

However, confronting the situation, a person is faced with shouldering the risk of possible legal action if he is unable to locate a title and moves the vehicle, or, once proof of ownership is obtained, the problem arises of where to dispose of the car or truck.

Thus, the only other alternative would be a concentrated effort on behalf of the city, or a civic organization to develop a program to help willing residents rid their backyards and alleys of the open sores which fester on public apathy.

A man in Oregon complained about funny noises in his electric organ. It turned out that his musical instrument was picking up short-wave messages and broadcasting them into his living room.

WHERE THEY BELONG — Old crushed car bodies await shipment to buyers of scrap iron and tin at Chanan's, Inc., 738 East Railroad in the city. In the foreground is the "bailer" which crushes the car bodies into "bails" prior to shipment. The car or truck bodies must be cleaned before thrown into the bailer. This necessitates removing the motors and most of the parts, a costly process which junk dealers claim is not worth the effort.

Norway IFYE To Live With Scott Family

The Wayne Bruns family, Winchester route one, will be host family to Asbjørn Ringen, 1967 International Farm Youth Exchange from Norway.

Mr. Ringen will arrive at the Bruns home on September 18 for a three week stay. He will leave on October 7 to go to his next host family home in Dixon, Illinois.

Asbjørn lives in Hundrop, Norway where he works as a journalist. He is 20 years old and speaks English fluently as well as his native language Norwegian, German and a little French.

During his three week stay at the Bruns home Asbjørn will be living as a part of the family. He will be working with the Bruns family learning about their farming operation. He will also be observing Scott County agriculture along with social and cultural life in this part of Illinois.

According to Scott County Extension Advisor, George Myers, the IFYE program is an exchange program of 4-H alumni and other young adults of the United States, with rural youth of other countries. IFYE is conducted by the National 4-H Club Foundation in behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service of the State Land-Grant Universities of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Since its beginning in 1948, 69 countries have participated in the program with the United States. In 1967, approximately 200 young people and 35 countries will participate in the exchange.

Rosemary Finn, Gayle Petefish Vows In Virginia

VIRGINIA—Friends and relatives filled St. Luke's Catholic church here Saturday afternoon for the nuptial ceremony in which Miss Rosemary Finn became the bride of Gayle Allen Petefish. The Reverend Simpson performed the ceremony.

Pink carnations and white glads were used at the church altar. Robert Long presided at the organ.

The bride is the daughter of the Leo T. Finns of Chandler-ville route two. Mr. Finn gave his daughter in marriage. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Petefish, Virginia route three.

The bride wore a skimmer line gown of Bouquet taffeta with long sleeves. Lace was used on the bodice and the A-line skirt and bordering the Watteau train which fell chapel length from bows at either back shoulderline. A headpiece of lace petals encrusted with pearls and crystal held her veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

The bride's sister, Miss Frances Ann Finn, was her maid of honor and Miss Janet Redman of Plainville and Miss Sherry Plunkett of Arenzville were bridesmaids. They were gownned alike in pink peau de soie falling floor length and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

The little flower girl was Sandra Marie Finn, another sister of the bride. She wore white peau de soie, also floor length and carried a basket of pink rose petals. Kevin Hembrough of Winchester, small cousin of the bride, was the ringbearer.

Mrs. Finn chose for her daughter's wedding a double-knit blue ensemble with black accessories. Her flowers were pink roses and her blue hat matched the shade of her costume. The groom's mother was in a cranberry red knit A-line dress with black accessories and a matching cranberry hat. Her flowers were white carnations.

Assisting at the reception held at the Rossi restaurant in Virginia were Mrs. Ruth Masten, Mrs. Mary Decker, Mrs. Marie Hembrough, Mrs. Martha Lewis, Miss Marilyn Masten, Miss Kathleen Finn, Mrs. Ruth Ginder, Mrs. Helen Ginder and Mrs. Blanche Henderson. The lovely decorated bride's cake was baked by Mrs. John McGinnis, cousin of the bride.

Following a wedding trip in Southwestern States the couple will reside on Virginia route three.

Mrs. Petefish graduated from Chandlerville High School in 1965 and is a senior student at the Passavant Memorial Area Hospital School of Nursing. Mr. Petefish graduated from Virginia High School the same year, attended the Hardin Business College in Jacksonville and is engaged in farming.

Constance Zeller Becomes Bride In Rites Yesterday

Miss Constance Lee Zeller became the bride of Gary Dean Leach Saturday noon, September ninth, at the Visitation church in Alexander with Reverend Robert Spriggs officiating. A nuptial mass was held at noon. Yellow and white flowers decorated the altar. Soloist Marilyn Wankel of Tallula was accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Vern Bergschneider.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Zeller of Jacksonville rural route four and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Leach of Rochester, Illinois.

Miss Linda Zeller, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor. Mrs. Suzanne Kershaw Webb of Streator, Illinois, served as matron of honor. Miss Jo Lynn Leach, the groom's sister; Miss Becky Zeller, the bride's sister, and Miss Debbie Zeller, another sister, were the bridesmaids. Amy Zeller, the bride's niece, was the flower girl.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line lace dress over a fitted satin sheath. Her Watteau train of silk illusion was enhanced by lace medallions. The bride's illusion veil fell from a headpiece of clustered stephanotis. She carried a cascade of stephanotis centering white roses.

Steve Leach, the groom's brother; Terry Anderson, Springfield, a fraternity brother; J. D. Zeller, the bride's brother; John Hreno and Dave Holmes, also of Springfield, attended the groom.

Alan Johnson and Curt Strode, the groom's cousin, seated guests. The bridesmaids were gownned alike in floor length dresses of maize crepe. Their headpieces were maize pill boxes with bubble veils. The flower girl was similarly gownned. Each carried a single long stemmed yellow rose.

The bride's mother wore pink crepe with matching color accessories. The groom's mother chose mint green crepe with matching accessories. Each wore a corsage of white gladioli.

A reception was held at the Jacksonville Country Club. Miss Judie Ostermann, Miss Lauren Everson, Miss Donna Tabor, Miss Francine Harris, Miss Stefanie Crifasi, Miss Diane Vandever and Miss Judy Moel-ler assisted.

After a honeymoon to the Smokey Mountains, the couple will reside in Carbondale.

The bride graduated from Routt in 1964 and is a senior at Southern Illinois University, majoring in education. She is a member of Sigma Kappa social sorority.

The groom graduated from Rochester High School and is also a senior at Southern Illinois University, majoring in accounting. He is a member of the Beta Alpha Psi national scholastic accounting fraternity and past president of Tau Kappa Epsilon, social fraternity.

Special guests were Gary Zeller, the bride's brother, and his fiancée, Lauren Everson, both of Madison, Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zeller Jr., the bride's brother and sister-in-law, of Carbondale, and sorority sisters and fraternity brothers of the couple.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents, was served at the Beef and the Bird Friday evening.

Martha Wolfe, Arizona Man Exchange Vows

In a ceremony performed Thursday afternoon Miss Martha Marion Wolfe became the bride of Richard Edward Johnson of Tucson, Arizona. Dr. Harris Pankhurst of Clearwater, Florida, minister emeritus of the Congregational church of Jacksonville, officiated for the double ring service at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Albyn Garrett Wolfe, 1235 Parnassus Place.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Tucson.

Guests were seated by Donald Johnson of Fargo, North Dakota, brother of the groom and David Burkholder and Robert Bartholomay, both of Minneapolis, Minnesota and friends of the groom.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of organza and lace over peau de soie. Pearls adorned the lace bodice of the gown and the sweeping train of organza over net, attached at the empire waistline, was applied in lace. A peau pillbox headpiece secured her short veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses.

Mrs. Clifford Murphy of New Haven, Connecticut and Dr. Frank Hull of Fairfield, California, close friends of the couple, were their only attendants.

Mrs. Murphy wore floor length olive green crepe with a lace bodice, the back of the dress featuring a loose panel of self material. Her headpiece matched her costume and she carried a cascade of bronze mums.

At the reception, held at the Jacksonville Country Club, guests were registered by Mrs. Marjorie Arnold. Included among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Tucson, Arizona, Mrs. Donald Johnson and daughters, Lee Ann and Kristine of Fargo, North Dakota.

Mrs. W. Harris Pankhurst of Clearwater, Florida; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Smith of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Quinn of Akron, Ohio; Mrs. John T. Watters, Coral Gables, Florida; Mrs. C. S. Long of Pontiac and John C. Stenson of St. Louis, Missouri.

After a trip to the Northwest the couple will be at home October first in Tucson, Arizona where Mr. Johnson is engaged in business.

Rebecca Herring Of Winchester Weds Iowa Man

WINCHESTER — Two ministers officiated for the early September wedding in which Miss Rebecca Jane Herring of Winchester and Craig Lavern Petre of Iowa were united at the local First Methodist church.

Performing the afternoon ceremony on Sunday, the Third, were the Reverend Duane Churchman of Carlisle, Iowa and the church pastor, the Reverend Randall Wofford. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Baskets of white Fuji mums were used with palms at the candlelight altar. Mrs. R. R. Funk accompanied the soloist, Richard J. Coultas.

The bride is the daughter of the Albert W. Harrings of Winchester and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Petre of Carlisle, Iowa.

Miss Sue Ann Sauer, college roommate of the bride, was maid of honor and a sister of the bride, Mary Ann Herring, and Miss Jean Ann Norman, were bridesmaids. All are of Winchester. They wore olive green chiffon dresses with draped back and short sleeves. Each carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with ivy.

Ushers were Bob Reid of Winchester; Dwight Nidey and Gregory Tilton, both of Carlisle, Iowa; Douglas Brown of Monroe, Iowa and Rick Middleton of Iowa City, Iowa.

Alan Petre of Ames, Iowa, brother of the groom, was best man and Sam Herring and Paul Herring of Winchester, brothers of the bride, were groomsmen.

When a recipe calls for only a drop or two of lemon juice, there is no need to cut a whole lemon in half. It's more economical to pierce the lemon with either a sharp pronged fork or the tip of a sharp paring knife, and squeeze out the amount of juice you need. The rest of the lemon will stay fresh for future use.

The groom's mother wore an A-line robin's egg blue knit with a matching floral hat and white basic accessories. Her corsage was a white cymbidium orchid. At the reception held in the church Mrs. Clyde Baldes, Mrs. Stephen Grummel, Mrs. Gerald Wollenweber, Mrs. Robert Wollenweber and Mrs. Clarence McGuire assisted.

NELSON AND NEAL, the duo-pianists, have played more concerts in the past ten years than any other two piano teams in the work. They are the only artists in the world whose lives have been dramatized over two major television networks. Their recitals, invariably consist entirely of original four-hand literature and are brought to life with an incandescent virtuosity which has been rewarded by ecstatic reviews all over America. They will appear here Saturday, December 9.

Artist's League

Outdoor Fair At Gallery Next Sunday

The annual Outdoor Art Fair, sponsored by the Jacksonville Area Artists League will be held next Sunday at the Strawn Art Gallery. Work done by artists in the area will be exhibited to the public all day on the Gallery lawn on West College avenue. Many of the pictures will be for sale.

All area artists are invited to exhibit at the Fair and participants are encouraged to bring demonstrating materials if they so desire. Necessary tables, stools, easels, etc. will be available. A fence is supported to hold paintings, but backdrops must be provided by individuals if needed for display. Any media may be exhibited. There is no entry fee.

Since the early years of the Jacksonville Area Artists League the Art Fair has been an annual project and highlights the year for the artists and art enthusiasts. Works shown are both for exhibit and for sale.

Members of the League will assist in setting up displays Sunday from 9 to 11 a.m. The public may view from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Each exhibitor should be on hand through the afternoon, if possible to discuss his work, or complete a sale.

The Fair marks the kickoff of the League's first semester of evening classes. Interested artists may obtain information about League activities at this time or may attend the first class at 7 p.m. Sept. 20, in the basement studio at the Gallery.

Classes are now in planning stage. Instructors Harold Vosseller of White Hall; John Arthur, director of Illinois College Art Department and Howard Sidman, associate professor of art at MacMurray College, have agreed to work with the League this year in teaching, demonstrating technique and collaborating on critical sessions.

King, Clarence Saner, Rena Chaney, Louise Robinson, Harold Dunlap, Albert DeWitt, Eula Priest, Cora Cherry, Mary Louise Newman, George Gunn, Denham Harney, Mildred Patton, Dorothy Chipchase, Hazel Brown, Roy Ross and Emma Wiegand.

Wilbur Rogers presented the master of ceremonies, Homer Reynolds, who in turn presented the graduates.

Faculty officers for the Class of 1917 were Miss Sophronia Kent and Truman P. Carter.

Sharon Mibb Of Chandlerville September Bride

CHANDLERVILLE — Miss Sharon Mibb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hersel Mibb of Chandlerville and Donald Williams of Havana were united in marriage Friday evening, Sept. 1st.

The Reverend E. C. Keith of the Chandlerville Baptist church received the vows in a ceremony performed at his home. Members of the immediate families attended.

The couple returned last Monday following a short wedding trip and will make their home in the Alcorn apartments here.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Chandlerville High School and is employed by the State of Illinois at Springfield. The groom attended Havana schools and is employed in that city.

JULIE NIXON AT EISENHOWER TEA

NEW YORK (AP) — Post-debutante Julie Nixon, daughter of former Vice President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, attended a tea reception Wednesday to greet Barbara Ann Eisenhower, granddaughter of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who will be making her debut here this winter.

Miss Nixon, 19, came out last year at the International Debutante Ball.

Miss Eisenhower, 18, got some pointers from Julie, including how to curtsy at the coming-out affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Stevens

Marcia Taylor Of Meredosias And Lynn Stevens Wed

MEREDOSIA — Miss Marcia Ann Taylor and Lynn E. Stevens were united in marriage Sunday afternoon, August twenty-seventh, in an impressive ceremony at the local Methodist church.

The Reverend M. D. Goldsborough of Bluffs, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of Meredosias and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Stevens of Sutter.

Mrs. Wayne Hammit was soloist and Miss Jolene Schneider was at the organ. Arrangements of lemon yellow chrysanthemums and orange pompons were used with greenery at the candlelight altar.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length gown of silk organza over tulle. Wide panels of scalloped French lace extended from the bodice to the hemline. Her detachable train was trimmed with matching lace and a cluster of organza flowers held her veil of illusion. She carried yellow roses and stephanotis on a white nylon base.

Miss Lisa Metz was maid of honor and Miss Shelia Stevens of Sutter, was junior bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in A-line dresses of lemon yellow Pagoda shantung with matching bouffant veils. Each carried a nosegay of lemon foliage centering a single lemon yellow mum.

Deborah Brown was flower girl and carried a daisy pompon nosegay. Dannie Brown was the ring bearer.

James Stevens of Raritan was best man and John Moffitt, Normal, was the groomsman. Ushers were John Lael and Larry Little.

The mother of the bride wore blue lace with matching color accessories and the groom's mother was in a beige bonded lace with yellow accessories. Each wore a corsage of yellow gladioli.

At the reception held at the church Miss Carolyn Nunn, Miss Reba Clark, Mrs. Thomas Goldsborough and Mrs. James Stevens, assisted.

The bride graduated from the Meredosias-Chambersburg High School and attended Western Illinois University two years. The groom graduated from Warsaw High School and is a junior this year at Illinois State University in Normal, where he is majoring in agriculture.

About one-third of all consumer buying in this country is done by families that include a working wife, a study by the National Industrial Conference Board shows.

Mrs. Richard Taylor Syrcle

Linda Fisher, Richard Syrcle United In Pike

BARRY — In a ceremony at the New Canton Methodist church on Saturday afternoon Miss Linda Fisher of New Canton and Richard Taylor Syrcle of Barry were united in marriage.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend J.O. Craig. Miss Sandra Brown was at the organ and Gary Brown sang.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Fisher of New Canton and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Syrcle of Barry.

Baskets of yellow glads and white pompons were used with palms at the taper lighted altar.

Mr. Fisher gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a full length cage of ivory fleur-de-lis Chantilly lace over peau de soie. A peau bow at the back waist secured her chapel train.

A petal headdress with pearl clusters held her illusion veil and she carried a colonial arrangement of yellow roses and stephanotis.

Miss Barbara Koeller of New Canton was maid of honor, Miss Susie Stoltz of Kinderhook, Miss Terri Fisher, New Canton and Miss Loretta Reed of Kewanee were bridesmaids. They wore full length gowns of peach Saki cloth with large bows at the back necklines. Tiny rose head-dresses held brief Saki veils and each carried a bouquet of shrimp colored carnations and yellow pompons.

Reginald Syrcle of Canton, Missouri served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Pat Syrcle, cousin of the groom, Michael Moore and Gary Main, all of Barry.

Ushers were Tim Flinn, Columbia, Missouri and Trenton Boyd of Kirkwood, Missouri.

Cinda Lynn of Peoria, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and wore lace over satin. She carried mums tied with green-bow. Tapers were lighted by Lynn Fisher, brother of the bride, and John Kendrick.

The bride's mother wore beige lace with brown accessories. Her flowers were shrimp colored carnations. The mother of the groom was in turquoise with a matching lace coat and her flowers were white carnations.

At the reception held at the New Canton grade school cafeteria the following assisted, Mrs. Paul Bubb, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Robert Lynn of Peoria, Mrs. Richard Garner, Washington, both aunts of the bride, Miss Mary E. Gard.

The rehearsal dinner served the Friday night before the wedding was held at the Carriage House in Hannibal where the groom's parents entertained.

Following their return from their wedding trip the couple will live in Bridgeton, Missouri.

The bride graduated from West Pike High School and attended Western Illinois University two years and the University of Missouri this summer. She will be attending the University of Missouri in St. Louis. The groom graduated from Barry High School and University of Missouri this past August. He will be an electrical engineer for McDonnell Douglas Aircraft in St. Louis.

Rick Forzano, the backfield coach of the St. Louis football Cardinals, calls the Kansas City Chiefs "the fastest team in football." And he can't get over little Noland Smith, their kick return specialist. "Impossible to time him," says Rick. "No one can press the button fast enough to catch his getaway."

Strictly a personal opinion, and not meant to disparage current coach Johnny Ruch, but if Al Davis were the field boss of the Oakland Raiders instead of the top echelon man, they'd be a strong bet to upset the Chiefs for the AFL's western title.

Midst all the miracles he has fashioned at Denver, coach Lou Saban of the Broncos suddenly yearned for a tree in his back yard. "Simple, coach," said one of his disciples. "Just go out in the yard, point and say, 'Tree.'"

To Lou, there's no mystery to his instant Rebuild of the Broncos: "Go right to the lines with a new team. You can't throw unless you have good pass protection. You can't stop 'em unless you have good rushers." And so on the Denver front walls on offense and defense remain only two starters from last year—offensive tackle Bob Breitenstein, defensive tackle Bill Keating.

In fact, of the 22 starters on both Broncos units, only six are holdovers—with a cumulative experience of 10 years in pro ball, or less than, say, Jim Ringo of the Philadelphia Eagles.

One man who isn't worried about pro football over-exposure is owner Ed Williams of the Washington Redskins. "In 20 years," he says, "the biggest business in this country will be leisure. That means increased activity in participant sports, but then they also start looking for spectator sports to fill the time gap. And I don't think there's any argument that pro football is the best buy. You're not approaching saturation when you sell out every week."

Susan Marr used to enjoy being a golf wife until the kids got to be school age and she had to stay home while hubby Dave Marr, the former PGA champ, wandered off on tour. Now she's restricted to three or four tournaments a year and laments, "It's become my competition instead of my way of life."

If there's going to be one surface for tennis, Roy Emerson favors clay, European variety. "It's not until the last couple of years that I've learned how to play on it," admits the Australian veteran. "I think it's a great test. Not only does it take terrific physical condition, but you

DeVincenzo Grabs Lead In Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Robert de Vincenzo, unperturbed by a driving rain, grabbed the first round lead Saturday in the 36-hole World Series of Golf with a brilliant par-70 and a one stroke lead over Masters champion Gary Brewer.

The 44-year-old Argentinian, who qualified for a shot at the top prize of $50,000 by winning the British Open, fired a 37-33 over the Firestone Country Club course.

Brewer had a 37-34—71 and was two strokes ahead of PGA champion Don January, who had a 38-35—73.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of the U.S. Open and heavy favorite to take the Series, shot a dismal 37-74 and was four strokes behind DeVincenzo going into Sunday's final round.

From the moment the four champions teed off until they finished more than five hours later it rained. Play was delayed some 20 minutes after the first nine and there were six changes in pin placements on the back nine because of water.

On a couple of the greens the players were allowed to move their balls before putting out because of water pools.

If the rain bothered DeVincenzo, he didn't show it. In fact, his worst hole came when the rain let up between the fourth and seventh holes.

Twins, Detroit Hold First Place

Kaat Hurls 5-Hitter In 3-2 Edge

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Minnesota Twins retained their share of first place in the American League pennant scramble Saturday as Jim Kaat pitched a five-hitter and defeated Baltimore 3-2.

The victory kept the Twins in a flat-footed tie for the lead with Detroit, which rallied for seven runs in the ninth inning and a 7-3 victory over Chicago. Third-place Boston, which beat New York 7-1 in a night game, remained one-half game off the pace and the fourth-place White Sox fell two games off the pace.

Two of the hits off Kaat, now 12-13 after a poor start, were home runs—the 400th of Frank Robinson's major league career and an eighth inning pinch shot by Sam Bowens.

Harmon Killebrew's 38th homer, giving him one less than Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, the major-league lead, snapped a scoreless tie in the fourth inning.

Minnesota chased loser Bill Dillman, 5-9, in the seventh. Ted Uhlaender doubled and scored on a single by Cesar Tovar. After Tovar stole second and Tony Oliva was intentionally walked, Bob Allison singled to make it 3-0.

Oliva, who had eight hits in nine trips during Friday's twin-night doubleheader, singled in his first two at bats to run his consecutive string to nine before striking out in the fifth.

The leadoff homer in the seventh by Robinson, who missed a month of the season because of an injury, was his 27th of the year. He became the 13th player in history to reach the 400-homer mark.

Then, in the eighth, Bowens, batting for Eddie Watt, lined his fourth of the year, cutting the Twins' lead to one run. But Kaat bore down and retired the last five batters in order to end it.

Revoke Aurora Race Allotment

CHICAGO (AP)—The harness racing allotment of 66 nights from Dec. 1 through Feb. 19 for Aurora Downs was revoked Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board.

Action came when attorneys representing Ethel Pauline, Mae and Dora Haffa failed to clear the track's financial position at a show-cause hearing.

Revocation followed an investigation by the state attorney general's office. It showed liens, losses, mortgages and judgments totaling $2,829,085 outstanding against the west suburban harness plant.

The winter dates now remain open to any responsible applicant with the exception that the meeting may not be held at a track in Cook County, which has its full complement of racing days under Illinois law.

Chairman Francis Crosby of the racing board said after the 2-hour meeting that he was confident there would be racing on those winter dates possibly under new owners at Aurora Downs which is in Kane County.

He indicated that despite the track's indebtedness, new owners could assume a defaulted mortgage of $1,691,153 to make the purchase of the track financially feasible.

ON TO VICTORY: Mario Andretti (No. 1) passes Bruce Walkup between the first and second turn of the 6th lap on his way to victory in the Hoosier Hundred in Indianapolis, Ind. Saturday afternoon. Walkup, who drives a sprint car for Dr. Ward Dunseth of Jacksonville, won the pole position in a Ford-powered Leader auto, with Andretti on the outside of the first row in a Dean Van Lines car. Andretti, winning his second straight Hoosier Hundred for championship cars, went on unchallenged while Walkup finished sixth, A. J. Foyt came in second, Al Unser third and Billy Vukovich fourth. The race was held entirely under the green flag, setting a new race record. (Journal-Courier photo)

Andretti Takes Second Straight Hoosier Hundred

INDIANAPOLIS, (AP)—Mario Andretti repeated the rich Hoosier 100 win at the Indiana State Fairgrounds Saturday, but this time he beat A. J. Foyt fair and square.

Foyt, who led last year's Hoosier 100 when his brake pedal broke less than three miles from the finish, was never able to catch Andretti Saturday and finished second.

The defending United States Auto Club's champion challenger was a surprising rookie Bruce Walkup, 23, of Downey, Calif., who set track qualifying records of 104.076 with the only Ford in the race.

All other 17 qualifiers were Offenhausers.

The entire race was run without an accident or caution light, but Andretti's winning average of 95.546 mph was slower than his 1966 record of 96.582 for the 15-year old event.

Walkup led the first 13 miles of the race with superior pick-up but inexperience caught up with him and he finished in sixth place.

Following Andretti, Nazareth, Pa. and Foyt, Houston, Tex. to cross the finish line were Al Unser, Albuquerque, N.M.; Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif.; Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex.; Walkup; Carl Williams, Kansas City; Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz.; Chuck Hulse, Shingle Springs, Calif. and Ralph Liuzzi, Tampa, Fla.

Andretti won a $24,070 purse from a total of $61,400. Approximately 26,300 persons witnessed the classic, held beneath over-cast skies.

Farrell Saves 4-3 Phillies' Win Over Braves

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Tight relief pitching by Dick Farrell preserved a 4-3 Philadelphia victory over Atlanta on Saturday night.

Farrell relieved Larry Jackson, 11-13, with two runs in, Mack Jones on second and one out in the eighth. After a wild pitch, he gave up a sacrifice fly to Hank Aaron and retired Joe Torre.

Jackson was leading 4-0 until doubles by Woody Woodward, Felipe Alou and Jones in the eighth.

The Phillies took an early lead when Johnny Briggs singled and scored on Johnny Callison's double in the first inning. Atlanta starter Tony Cloninger, 4-7, left the game because of an injured right elbow and was replaced by Ramon Hernandez.

Tigers Get Seven In 9th For 7-3 Win

CHICAGO (AP)—Two-run singles by pinch hitter Jim Northrup and Willie Horton keyed a seven-run ninth inning uprising that gave the streaking Detroit Tigers a 7-3 victory over Chicago Saturday and preserved their share of the American League lead.

Trailing 3-0 in the ninth, the Tigers raked five Chicago pinch-ers for six singles, two walks and a hit batsman to nail their fifth straight victory and remain in a flat-footed tie for first place with the Minnesota Twins, who edged Baltimore 3-2.

The loss dropped the fourth place White Sox two games off the pace.

Southpaw Gary Peters breezed into the ninth with a three-hitter before Al Kaline's single triggered the Tigers' comeback.

In all, the Tigers sent 13 batters to the plate before Rodgers Nelson got the last out.

Fred Lasher set down the White Sox in the bottom of the ninth, protecting Pat Dobson's first victory in three major league decisions.

The triumph enabled the Red Sox, in third place in the American League, to remain one-half game behind the Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers, which both won games earlier in the day.

Dave Morehead, a last minute pitching choice to replace virus-stricken Jerry Stephenson, allowed only four hits, but needed relief help from Sparky Lyle after the Yankees loaded the bases on Mickey Mantle's pinch single and two walks with none out in the eighth.

Lyle got out of the jam by striking out Jake Gibbs and getting Tom Tresh to ground into a double play.

Morehead, 5-3, a young right-hander who overcame arm trouble to earn a recall from the minors last month, surrendered a first inning run on two-out doubles by Tresh and Joe Pepitone.

Cards Move Step Closer To Flag 6-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steve Carlton fired a seven-hitter and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh 6-0 Saturday, moving another step closer to the National League pennant.

Carlton, 13-8, didn't allow more than one base runner in any inning after the first, when Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell singled with two out.

St. Louis scored its first two runs in the fourth as Lou Brock singled and Bob Tolán reached on an error.

Orlando Cepeda forced Brock at third but Dave Ricketts singled to score Tolán and Cepeda scored on an error by Clemente.

St. Louis added another run in the eighth when Brock walked, advanced to third on Tolán's single and scored on an infield

Nolan Scatters 6 Hits As Reds Blank Mets, 2-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Gary Nolan scattered six singles Saturday and hurled the Cincinnati Reds to a 2-0 victory over the New York Mets.

Nolan, 13-6, limited the Mets to two hits over the last six innings and struck out 10.

The Reds gave the 19-year-old right-hander a 1-0 lead in the first inning against loser Bill Graham on a pair of walks and Tony Perez' run-scoring single.

Pete Rose's bung single, a passed ball and errors by Ed Kranepool and Graham added another run in the third.

Nen's Triple Leads Senators Past Angels, 4-0

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dick Nen's triple with the bases loaded following a disputed call on a hit batsman led the Washington Senators to a 4-0 victory over the California Angels Saturday.

After a two-out single by Fred Valentine and a double by Ken McMullen in the fifth, a pitch by Jim McGlothlin to Frank Howard bounced back to the mound. But umpire Bill Haller said the ball hit Howard before it hit the bat. Nen followed with a triple and scored on Cap Peterson's infield hit.

Manager Bill Rigney of the Angels was ejected for making a gesture to Haller when he went to the mound following Nen's triple.

Reliever Darold Knowles allowed only two hits in six innings to gain the victory.

AP Poll Lists ND As No. 1

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Notre Dame, expected to produce another football powerhouse despite the loss of several star players, is picked to repeat as national college champions this year, according to The Associated Press' annual preseason poll.

Alabama also drew heavy support from the national panel of 32 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the voting. Michigan State placed third, followed by Texas, Miami of Florida, Georgia, Southern California, UCLA, Tennessee and Colorado.

Notre Dame, which beat out runner-up Michigan State by 35 points in last season's final poll, collected 17 first place votes and 296 points in the 1967 pre season balloting. Alabama, third a year ago, was selected as the top team by 11 voters and accumulated a second place 282 points on a basis of 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third etc.

Michigan State drew only one vote for first place and 183 points while Texas, unranked in last year's final poll, was a close fourth with two votes for the top spot and 176 points.

'Birds Have Experience In The Line

VIRGINIA — Unlike most teams in the immediate area, Virginia will not be looking for experience in the line this season. The Redbirds will be after a backfield cut by graduation after last year's 4-5-1 mark, 2-2-1 in the PMSC Conference.

First-year coach Jay Lorton, an Auburn native who last coached at Divernon, will have plenty of experience and fair size in the line, including two-year regulars at several spots. A total of 14 lettermen are on hand.

Heading the list of returnees are two senior co-captain linemen, 225-pound tackle and place-kicker Dave Stidman and 190-pound center Sam Hardwick.

Other line returnees, all regulars last year, are 160-pound senior guard Dave Miller; 175-pound senior tackle Phil McClure; 160-pound senior end Walt Riley and 170-pound junior tackle Allan Hays.

The other eight lettermen will be fighting it out for the backfield spots. They are 170-pound senior Gary Babbs, a regular halfback last year switched to quarterback; 155-pound junior QB Fred Ore; 160-pound junior halfback Mike Goodall; 150-pound junior halfback Don Reynolds; 170-pound junior fullback Greg Reigerman, switched from an end; 160-pound senior halfback Dale Ring; 150-pound senior halfback Dennis Sweatman and 175-pound junior fullback Darrell Cox.

Bob Fair, a 6-1, 197-pound junior tackle transferred from Beardstown, is expected to help the Redbird cause.

Lorton says of his squad of 35, "We will have a good line, but one not exceptionally big. There is little experience in the backfield and very little speed."

Nucleus Retained
Michigan State retained the nucleus for a strong squad despite the loss of Bubba Smith, Clint Jones, Gene Washington and Jerry West, among others. Jimmy Raye at quarterback, Bob Apisa at fullback and Al Brenner at end are among the holdover standouts.

Texas appears ready to take command of the Southwest Conference once more after several relatively unimpressive campaigns. The Longhorns have a brilliant backfield consisting of Bill Bradley, Chris Gilbert, Linus Baer and Greg Lott plus fine personnel on both lines and about a dozen highly regarded sophomores.

UCLA and Tennessee, the No. 8 and No. 9 teams, respectively, meet in their opening games this Saturday.

The top three in the preseason voting play their first games Sept. 23, Notre Dame against California, Alabama against Florida State and Michigan State against Houston.

Big Assignment
"That's a heckva assignment to bow in and bow out before the home folks," cracked Mollenkopf, who nevertheless thinks his club has the pride and capability to avoid post-Rose Bowl complacency.

"We have obvious problems at quarterback and the offensive line interior with only guard Bob Sebeck back, but our mental attitude is very good and we should be a solid club," said Mollenkopf.

"There isn't much you can say about trying to replace a Bob Griese, but we hope for a good quarterback in Phipps or Engelbrecht—both intelligent, strong armed and pretty good runners."

Probably in an understatement, Mollenkopf said that, "We'll probably run the ball a little more this season—we have two pretty good running backs in Perry Williams and Keyes."

Fullback Williams last fall was the Big Ten's top sophomore rusher. Of Keyes, Mollenkopf commented: "He's one of the great natural athletes in Purdue history."

Bristling Defense
If Purdue reaches the top Big Ten rung for the first time since a 1952 title with Wisconsin or takes its only other clearcut crown since 1929, a bristling defense may be the springboard.

The entire 1966 defensive line-up is back, excepting sophomores Don Webster and Tim Foley as secondary backs. The array includes 237-pound tackle Lance Olssen; 240-pound Clanton King and Frank Burke as linebackers, and 226-pound Chuck Kyle at middle guard.

Coach Ray Nagle, whose Iowa team was pummeled last season by Michigan State and Purdue and meets both again this fall, favors the Boilermakers to dethrone the Spartans for several reasons.

"The most obvious one is that while Purdue lost Griese, Michigan State lost a half dozen super stars," said Nagle. "But another factor is that I feel a team gains a big advantage going to the Rose Bowl."

"It's like having an extra spring practice."

Grid Cardinals Suffer Fourth Pre-Season Loss

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A couple of old school chums got together Friday night and one of them had a great time.

Tom Vaughn, a Detroit Lions defense man via Iowa State, picked off a Tim Van Galder pass in the third quarter and danced 45 yards for a touchdown. The TD iced a 21-7 National Football League exhibition victory for the Lions over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Van Galder, a rookie quarterback, also from Iowa State, was in the Army last year.

It was a frustrating loss for the Cardinals, who have four other preseason losses and one victory to keep it company. Detroit won its third in five starts.

The Cardinals started the game in good shape. They scored the first time they got the ball, driving 56 yards in six plays. Will Crenshaw scored the touchdown, bulging up the middle from the one.

Quarterback Jim Hart hit end Jackie Smith on a 22-yard pass and Charlie Bryant circled right end for 21 yards in the drive.

But in the second period Detroit quarterback Karl Sweetan hit John Henderson for a 34-yard touchdown.

BLUFFS WARRIORS: Bluffs, after not winning a single game last year, will be facing another long grind this year with only six lettermen out. Shown are five of the six, front, l-r, Jim Rahe, John Krueger and Terry Daugherty. Back are Jim Settles and Danny Vannier.

Jays Again Face Long Grid Season Chicago Cops 8-2 Romp Over Giants

BLUFFS — What looked last year like a promising football team for 1967 hasn't exactly shaped up that way for coach Jim Phalen's Bluffs Bluejays.

Phalen played almost all underclassmen during last year's 0-6 campaign, and expected to have plenty of experience back this time around. However, several lettermen did not come out for the squad and injuries have taken a few more.

That left Bluffs with a small squad of 20 boys and only six lettermen with which to play out the season.

Heading the list of returnees is hard-running fullback Danny Vannier, a 5-8, 165-pound junior.

Other returning lettermen are 150-pound senior guard Terry Daugherty; 135-pound junior linebacker Jim Settles; 165-pound junior guard Jim Rahe; 95-pound junior tackle John Krueger and 50-pound sophomore linebacker Gary Williams.

Phalen, starting his third season at the Bluffs' helm, picks Triopia again as the team to beat in the PMSC Conference.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Billy Williams and Ernie Banks pounded two-run homers off 19-game winner Mike McCormick and the Chicago Cubs snapped San Francisco's seven-game winning streak Saturday with an 8-2 victory over the Giants.

After Randy Hundley's run-scoring triple gave the Cubs a 1-0 lead in the fourth, Glenn Beckert doubled in the fifth and Williams followed with his 22nd homer. Hal Lanier then booted Ron Santo's grounder and Banks smacked his 22nd homer, finishing McCormick.

Adolfo Phillips hit a bases-empty homer off reliever Lindy McDaniel in the sixth and left-hander Rich Nye, 12-9, checked the Giants on seven hits.

Wynn Slugs Pair In 5-3 Astro Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Wynn drilled his 34th and 35th homers of the season Saturday powering Houston to a 5-3 victory over Los Angeles that snapped a nine-game losing streak for the Astros.

Wynn's bases-empty homers sent him into a tie for the National League lead with Atlanta's Hank Aaron and boosted his Runs Batted In Total to 101 for the year.

Left-hander Mike Cueller yielded eight hits, including homers by Bob Bailey and Lou Johnson, on the way to his 13th victory against 11 defeats.

Pittsburgh Rally Nips Cardinals 4-3

Friday's Sports

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gene Alley opened the 10th inning with a triple and then rode home on Maury Wills' one-out single as the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped St. Louis 4-3 Friday night.

Bill Mazeroski and Jerry May were intentionally walked, loading the bases following Alley's triple. Then after reliever Al Jackson struck out pinch hitter Al Luplow, Wills delivered his winning hit.

Yanks Deal Costly Loss To Sox, 5-2

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Monbouquette, a Boston castoff, returned to torment the pennant-minded Red Sox on the mound and at the plate, while Tom Tresh contributed three straight hits in sparking the New York Yankees to a 5-2 victory Friday night.

Monbouquette, traded to Detroit after the 1965 season and ignored by the Red Sox when released earlier this season, squared his record at 4-4 with relief help from Joe Verbanic. Monbouquette scored a run breaking a 2-2 tie in the fifth and then launched a two-run rally in the seventh with his second single of the game.

The defeat was a bitter blow to the Red Sox, who had won three straight in closing to within one percentage point of the league lead.

Ashland outlived the winners, 12-5, but could not make up for the errors and walks. Mark Duranko slapped four singles in as many appearances and teammate Bill Mau blasted a homer and triple among three hits in a losing cause.

Tigers, Twins Tied For Lead

Mathews, Northrup Homer For Detroit

CHICAGO (AP)—Eddie Mathews and Jim Northrup hit homers Friday night, pacing Detroit to a 4-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox and giving the Tigers a tie for the American League lead with Minnesota.

Angels Stay In Race Via 4-0 Shutout

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rick Clark pitched a two-hitter and posted his first major league shutout Friday night as the California Angels defeated the Washington Senators 4-0.

The Angels broke the game open against Phil Ortega with a three-run eighth inning on four singles and an error, with Jimmie Hall, Don Mincher, Bubba Morton and Bob Rodgers contributing the hits and Roger Repoz adding a sacrifice fly.

The Angels scored in the fifth inning when Fred Valentine failed to hold Aurelio Rodriguez' sinking liner and it went for a triple. Rodriguez scored on Jim Fregosi's single.

The Reds won the first game 3-0 on Mel Queen's two-hitter. The Mets scored four times in the second inning of the nightcap, the runs coming in on a double by Jerry Grote, a sacrifice fly by Bud Harrelson, and singles by Bob Johnson and Tommy Davis.

Tom Seaver picked up his 13th victory, tying Al Jackson's club record set in 1963.

Swoboda's run-scoring single in the seventh gave the Mets a 5-2 lead, just enough to withstand a two-run rally by the Reds in the eighth on Tony Perez' 24th homer.

Queen struck out 10 and walked two in the opener and the Reds scored all their runs in the second inning on a single by Leo Cardenas and a two-run single by Tommy Harper.

Depth Is Iowa's Major Shortage

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Among a bumper crop of experienced Big Ten quarterbacks this fall, one of the best and certainly most battle-tested will be scrambling Ed Podolak of last-place Iowa.

Both Head Coach Ray Nagel and then-sophomore Podolak got a rugged baptism of conference football fire last season when the Hawkeyes had a 2-8 over-all record and a 1-6 league mark.

If former Utah coach Nagel's second Iowa season is to be an improvement, and well it might, the 182-pound Podolak's passing and prancing figures to lead the way.

Such other seasoned conference quarterbacks return as Jimmy Raye of Michigan State, Bob Naponic of Illinois, Dick Vidmer of Michigan, Bill Long of Ohio State, Curt Wilson of Minnesota and John Boyajian of Wisconsin.

Second To Griese
But it was Podolak, with less than iron-ribbed support, who last year was No. 2 behind sensational Bob Griese of Purdue in total conference offense.

Podolak, among 14 returning Hawkeye starters, in 1966 clicked on 77 of 191 passes for 1,041 yards and was Iowa's second best rusher with 450 yards on 141 carries.

Nagel hopes to hitch a sharper running attack to the galloping Podolak's pass-run threat. He has switched 198-pound Silas McKennie, leading Hawkeye rusher for two seasons, from fullback to tailback.

The move is aimed at opening up the inside phase of Nagel's winged T attack which he introduced last season to replace the "pro set" offense of his luckless predecessor, Jerry Burns.

"We still don't expect to overpower anybody, but we do hope to get the middle unplugged a little bit more than last season when we had to hit mainly on the outside," said Nagel.

The Hawkeyes still seem a year away from cutting any sizeable swath in the Big Ten. But by Podolak's senior year, a raft of current sophomores—including potential first-liners Tim Sullivan at Fullback, center Dean Schuessler, offensive guards Jon Maskimen and Larry Ely, and halfback Pat Dunnigan—may give the club a big lift.

Rely On Sophs
Iowa will probably rely on nine lettermen and two sophomores on both the offensive and defensive units, but the Hawkeye defense, especially in linebacking, may be vulnerable.

Nagel has tried shoring up his secondary by switching tough Tony Williams, team captain, from tailback to defensive halfback.

Indicative of Iowa's lack of depth is the fact that 13 sophomores are clustered on his No. 2 offensive and defensive units.

Nagel has an additional headache this season with national champion Notre Dame returning to the Iowa schedule Oct. 7 at South Bend, Ind.

After the Irish, Iowa runs a seven-game Big Ten gauntlet against Indiana, Wisconsin, Purdue, Minnesota, Northwestern, Ohio State and Illinois.

Army To Permit Grid Cardinal Pair To Play

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The St. Louis football Cardinals said Friday the U.S. Army will permit linebacker Larry Stallings and quarterback Charley Johnson to play with the club this season.

The Cardinals reactivated Stallings, an army engineer lieutenant, and said he would play in Saturday night's Detroit home game.

fourth in a row and sixth in seven games. Mickey Lolich, 10-12, won his fifth straight game, but needed relief help from Fred Lasher after allowing a run in the eighth. At one stretch, Lolich retired 14 straight batters.

Tommy John, 9-1, was the victim of Mathews' homer, the 500th of his career, 16th of the season and fifth since joining the Tigers.

Detroit picked up an unearned run for a 2-0 lead in the sixth. Ken Boyer fumbled Al Kaline's two-out grounder and after Willie Horton was hit by a pitch, Bill Freehan brought Kaline across with a single to left.

The Tigers' third run also was unearned and came after left fielder Pete Ward dropped Mickey Stanley's routine fly ball for a two-base boot. Oyler bunted Stanley to third and Lolich then brought him in with a squeeze bunt.

IC To Open Practice On Monday

The Illinois College football Blueboys arrive on campus Sunday to begin fall practice sessions at 9 a.m. on Monday. They will play the first of eight games on Sept. 30, when they will host Rose Poly of Terre Haute, Ind., in a Prairie College Conference match.

"We play one of our toughest schedules," head coach Joe Brooks says. "We open with two conference games, and then we travel to Chicago Gately Stadium to meet the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle."

The Blueboy tri-captains are linebacker Dennis Watson of Westville, Ill.; halfback Tom Rowland of Rushville, Ill.; and halfback Phil Snowden of Industry, Ill.

"We have a good nucleus in the backfield, but we must rebuild in several key spots," Brooks says. Twice-a-day practices will continue until Illinois College freshmen and transfer students come to the campus for orientation activities on Sept. 24. All students will return by Sept. 27.

Assisting Brooks will be assistant coaches Bill Merris and Don Gustine. Andy Kant, junior from Jacksonville, will be the trainer.

8 Unearned Runs Let Comets Win

FRANKLIN — A wild eight-run second inning was the difference Friday as Chandlerville notched a 9-5 non-conference triumph over Franklin.

All eight runs in the decisive second were unearned, as three straight errors following two outs opened the gates.

Leading Chandlerville's 13-hit attack were Terry Garner with a perfect 3-3 day, and Eilers, Gabehart and Beard each with a pair of hits. Dean Seymour went 3-3 including a pair of doubles for the losers and Gary Colwell rapped two singles in three trips.

Built-In Incentive Could Boost Illini

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The ingredients are there, a revenge motive, zeal and a superb passing combination — for a Big Ten football resurgence by scandal-rocked University of Illinois.

"It's a closed book — there's no use beating a dead horse," said new Illini Coach Jim Valek when questioned about reaction to the school's punishment for disclosing its $21,000 slush fund case last winter.

But the holdover Illini, understandably, still are burning. Valek, former star Illini end, was drafted from an assistant's job at South Carolina when the Big Ten forced resignation of Pete Elliott. Other sanctions included an NCAA barring of Illinois from Rose Bowl appearances for two seasons.

Valek inherited 23 lettermen and a dozen starters from Elliott's 1966 club which generally was tabbed the Big Ten team to watch in 1967.

Those holdovers were angered when Elliott was forced to quit and further incensed when the Rose Bowl was denied Illinois for two years.

Built-In Incentive
Thus Valek has a team with a built-in incentive, to come off the ropes good, like a chastised avenger should.

Illinois, which does not play defending champion Michigan State in its seven-game Big Ten schedule, may have one of the nation's best passing tandems in quarterback Bob Naponic and split-end John Wright.

Wright, a speedster son of the Illini track coach, has been among the country's leading receivers for two seasons.

With the new punt rule accentuating the possibility of long-gainers by punt receivers, Valek plans to use Wright also as a punt-returning back.

"Unless opponents double team or triple team Wright as a receiver, we'll be throwing the ball to him a lot," said Valek. "That's the best way to get back those quick six points that young defensive backs may cost you."

Biggest Headache
Valek was referring to his biggest problem, defensive secondary. Two sophomores, Charles Bareither and Bob Bess, are slated for defensive back duty when they recover from recent emergency appendectomies.

Meanwhile, Valek shifted to the defensive secondary two established stars, his team co-captains. They are offensive halfback Ron Bess, Bob's brother, and defensive end Ken Kmiec.

The strong running Ron Bess may have to play both ways with veteran Cyril Pinder among the athletes dismissed as a result of the illegal Illini fund and only Bill Huston and Fullback Rich Johnson back as seasoned ball-carriers.

Other key veterans are Tony Pleviak, 237-pound defensive tackle; 229-pound Fritz Harms at defensive guard, and middle linebacker Dave Tomasula.

Ban On Rose Bowl
Getting the third-place Illini (4-3) into Big Ten title contention, Valek concedes, is complicated by the NCAA-imposed Rose Bowl ban.

"Unquestionably, a Rose Bowl berth is a great incentive," said Valek, a star on the 1946 Illini who tromped UCLA 45-14 as the first Big Ten delegate in the current Rose Bowl series.

"That Rose Bowl prospect brings out a little extra something a champion needs. It's a sort of hungry feeling that you notice only by comparison of performances by the same team when the novelty of hitting the top wears off."

Examples this year, for instance, are the Orioles and Dodgers — even without Sandy Koufax — in baseball.

In midseason, the Illini must tackle Notre Dame here. The Oct. 21 renewal of a rivalry which lapsed in 1946 could jar the Illini's Big Ten concentration.

Philosophically Valek observed: "When this game was scheduled years ago, Notre Dame was way down. We're not thinking about Notre Dame until they show up. We hope we can give them a good game."

Orioles Salvage Split With Twins

BALTIMORE (AP) — Reliever Pete Richert choked off Minnesota threats in the seventh and eighth innings and preserved a 5-3 victory for Baltimore over the Twins in the nightcap of Friday's two-night doubleheader.

Harmon Killebrew walloped his 37th homer and Jim Merritt hurled a six-hitter as the Orioles won the opener 7-2. The split left the Minnesota in a tie for first place with Detroit, which defeated the Chicago 4-1.

Richert replaced Baltimore starter Tom Phoebus, 12-3, in the seventh and retired Cesar Tover and Killebrew with two outs.

Angelo, Zulauf Slated To Start For Eastern II

Two 1966 Jacksonville High school graduates will likely be in the starting lineup when Eastern Illinois University opens its football season Sept. 16 at Indiana State.

Backfield man Larry Angelo and lineman Roger Zulauf are currently listed as probable starters in their spots, according to head coach Clyde Biggers.

Angelo, a bruising 5-11, 196-pounder who led last year's frosh team in every category, will start in the backfield along with three returning lettermen.

"Larry doesn't have blinding speed," Biggers says. "But he can get outside and he's a smart runner. If he can't get around a tackler, he has the size to go through him, too."

The other three backfield starters will be All-IAC fullback Dennis Bundy (Fairfield), halfback Curt Leonard (Chenoa) and junior quarterback Joe Davis (Charleston).

Zulauf, a 6-2, 233-pound tackle, is slated to start along with Little All-America candidate Paul Fjell (Elmwood Park). The line will average 235-pounds from end to end.

"We hope some sophomores come along quickly so we can use Zulauf and two others as defensive specialists," Biggers says.

Three other Jacksonville products, 1967 graduates, will be on the Eastern frosh squad this fall. They are Abe Brown, Gerald Stewart and Harry Gollier. All five from Jacksonville are on football scholarships.

PREP GRIDDER DIES

runners on base. The Twins loaded the bases with none out in the eighth on Tony Oliva's seventh hit of the doubleheader, an error and a fielder's choice tapper back to the mound on which Richert failed to make a play.

After Rich Rollins struck out, one run scored as the Orioles failed to make an inning—ending won the opener 7-2. The split left the Minnesota in a tie for first place with Detroit, which defeated the Chicago 4-1.

Minnesota scored two unearned runs in the opener as Baltimore made four errors and kicked the ball around on other occasions.

Killebrew's 37th homer came in the fourth with a man on base.

White's Double Sparks Phillies Past Braves, 4-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bill White's bases loaded double drove in a pair of runs in a three-run first inning that carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-1 victory Friday night over the Atlanta Braves.

Right-hander Rick Wise scored his first lifetime victory over the Braves after six defeats as he pitched a four-hitter. The only Atlanta run came in the fifth inning on Joe Torre's 20th home run.

Tony Taylor and John Briggs opened the Phillies first with singles and after John Callison struck out, Tony Gonzalez was intentionally walked, loading the bases. White slammed a double off the right field scoreboard scoring Taylor and Briggs. Gonzalez then scored on a wild pitch by loser Clay Carroll.

==YESTERYEAR==

"CORN - FEEDING" on John T. Alexander's farm, Morgan county, Illinois. Sketched by Professor Henry Worrall, Topeka, Kansas. From Joseph G. McCoy's "Historic Sketches of the Cattle Trade of the West and Southwest."

Beef Cattle Feedlot In 1867

Central Illinois would remain the biggest hog and cattle feeding section of the United States, predicted Joseph G. McCoy of Abilene, Kansas, just 100 years ago.

"Central Illinois has become universally wealthy by corn raising and hog and cattle feeding, or, in other words making the live stock product of other regions fit for eastern markets and consumption," he wrote.

"The best inland corn growing regions, where corn can be produced or bought cheaply are the cattle feeding centers. The farmer, who is often a feeder also, devotes his whole attention during the spring and summer months, to planting and cultivating a large crop of corn. When the fall season arrives, and the corn begins to mature, it is cut and shocked, which process of cutting and placing in the center, all the corn on a space of ground equal to fourteen or sixteen corn hills square. The corn stalks are cut off near the ground, and are set up snugly together, forming a compact shock, which is allowed to stand in the field until it is fed.

Little Corn At First

"A few weeks before the grass in the pasture fails, the feeder begins to give his cattle corn, at first but little, gradually increasing the amount until the cattle become thoroughly accustomed to it, without gorging or foundering.

"When the pasture becomes bare of grass, the cattle are brought into the feed yards, and there fed daily for from four to six months. The feeder's outfit is usually an ox team of one or more pairs of cattle, which are attached to a wagon, upon which is placed a long, rude, strong rack, much like a hay frame, upon which the shock corn is thrown, then drawn from the field to the feed lot.

"Entering the yard with his team, the feeder mounts the load, and throws the corn to the ground, first upon one side and then on the other, while the team moves around a beaten circuit which they soon become accustomed to follow, and which is soon marked by a high-ridge of corn-stalks, which in muddy, rainy times, formed a dry spot or circle, as well as an excellent bed in cold weather.

Half Bushel Daily

"An average sized bullock will eat and waste one-half bushel of corn each day, and will become, in time, very fat. The usual gain in four to six months feeding, is from two to three hundred pounds. Extra good feeding of extra good cattle will often make bigger gains.

"When shock corn is fed, two yards are provided, in which the cattle are fed alternate days. Whilst they are being fed in one, a herd of swine are eating up the waste and offal of the other. One or two hogs to each bullock are thus made fat. The profits on the hogs fattened is no inconsiderable item in the feeding operation."

This method of fattening hogs and cattle was known as "the Ohio system," which had by 1860 completely superseded "the Kentucky system" in this area. The latter consisted of fencing the cattle away from the corn field until late fall, and then just remove a panel or two of rail fencing and let the cattle into the field to eat to their heart's content.

But this resulted in a heavy waste of feed, so the cattle and hogs were fenced in the pastures and feedlots, and the corn hauled in to them daily.

The hogs roamed around in the corn stalks for stray kernels, thus ventilating the mass of stalks and making a fine bed for both themselves and the cattle, much better than cattle on feed have today.

"To secure the hogs to follow the feeding cattle sometimes the whole country is scoured, and occasionally resort is had to distant counties. This branch of trade, like all others, develops characteristics peculiar to itself.

It is said that nearly thirty suicides have been committed in St. Louis during this summer. A suicidal epidemic is supposed to be raging in that locality, and should engage the attention of scientific investigators.

The National Labor Congress in Chicago has adjourned without doing anything of great importance during the session. It advises the formation of a workman's political party. The suggestion is not an admirable one, since to expect to gain their objects by political action is a foolish business, but still the suggestion may influence some of the present existing political parties.

There is no question but that there have been three cases of yellow fever in this city, and that each of them can be traced directly to infected ships from foreign ports. It appears as though chlorine is known to be utterly ineffective and abortive as a disinfectant of yellow fever, yet it is the only means now used in Quarantine.

A meeting of tenement-house owners has been recently held and an association formed for their mutual protection. The immediate object of the meeting was to protect against the provision of the recent law, obliging the owners to place fireproof receptacles for fuel in all tenement-houses, while the association is to test the constitutionality of the entire act. Eventually, the people will come to the conclusion that all tenement-houses should be suppressed as public nuisances, just as the presence of pigs in the public streets or bone-boiling establishments have been, and then, unquestionably, there will be a still greater outcry from the owners.

A "PICKNEYVILLE" PIG VENDOR

In Central Illinois resort is sometimes had to southern counties for stock hogs to follow cattle. Those counties, less adapted to corn production, but abundant ing in heavy forests of oak, hickory and walnut, which produce mast, upon which the industrious long-nosed, cat-hampered porcines, indigenous to those regions, subsist.

Real Heroes

"When the local trader becomes aware of their value, he will industriously seek them out, gather them into small squads, and ship them to the central portions of the state, where, with a manner the most laudable, he will seek to sell them to some cattle feeder. The itinerant pig-peddler is of very doubtful morals, or virtue, and usually reside upon a State road, or public thoroughfare in a hilly district where the yellow clay soil is uppermost.

"The pig vendors are genuine heroes, and often hail from 'Pinckneyville' or other mellifluous regions. Should the reader ever journey in those regions, he will not fail to hear of, or meet, one of those 'heroes,' and will know at once that he is in the presence of unappreciated greatness, of which he will be a Ware."

An editor down South says he would as soon try to go to sea on a shingle, make a ladder of fog, chase a streak of lightning through a crab-apple orchard, swim up the rapids of Niagara, or set Lake Erie on fire with a wet match, as to stop lovers getting married when they take it into their heads to do so.

Be temperate of diet. Our first parents ate themselves out of house and home.

Women before marriage want nothing but husbands, and when they get them they want everything else.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Many things are put off — one of these is the planting of trees and shrubs.

Fall is a good time to do this. Consult with a good reputable nurseryman as to the possible plants that may be used in our climate. Look at them. Look at your home and grounds, decide what would look best and make a planting plan. Take this to your nurseryman and plant the things this fall while they are dormant.

It's not too early to start this now.

Now is the time to re-seed your lawn or seed a new lawn. Be sure you have a good fertile soil, rake in fertilizer well before sowing seed, sow a mixture, being sure you get even coverage.

Remember that during periods without rain in fall and winter evergreens continue to transpire and may need to be watered.

Now you should

- ... Help children with homework.
- ... Get ready to cut soybeans.
- ... Eat and sleep regularly.
- ... Read Mark 4:26-34.
- ... Buy new shoes.
- ... Plow.
- ... Buy tulip bulbs.
- ... Take vitamins.

Top out your hogs as they are ready. We are approaching the time of year when we traditionally have a drop in price. Fewer pounds of heavy hogs will lessen the likelihood of price lowering.

It doesn't matter whether you can't do it, don't do it, or won't do it, the results are the same.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

BIG CORN CROP TO REBUILD STOCKS

The nation's corn and soybean crops are a few days behind their normal schedule; but generally, they are in good condition. Both crops will set new production records by wide margins. The unusually cool weather of recent weeks brings thoughts of an early freeze, which could do a lot of damage.

On the basis of conditions existing July 1, the USDA forecast corn production of 4.51 billion bushels. Weather was favorable during July, so in early August the forecast was raised to 4.65 billion bushels. August brought more favorable weather to most of the eastern half of the nation, so the September estimate of the corn crop may be higher than the August forecast.

More acres; record yields. The acreage of corn is estimated at 61.3 million—up 8 percent from last year. The national average yield per acre was forecast (early August) at 76 bushels—4 bushels more than in 1966. The Illinois crop is exceptionally good. The average yield was forecast at 96 bushels per acre—16 bushels more than 1 year before, but only 2 bushels more than 2 years ago. This yield was the highest for any state.

Illinois will be the first state to produce a billion-bushel crop of any kind. The state production of corn was forecast at 1,063 million bushels. The previous record was 919 million bushels of corn, set by Illinois 2 years ago.

Surplus stocks will increase. The big corn crop will be far more than will be used and exported during the marketing year beginning October 1. Consequently, there will be a buildup of surplus stocks.

Carryover stocks on October 1 this year may be over 900 million bushels, compared with 840 million a year ago. If the new crop makes 4.7 billion, the total supply would be over 5.6 billion.

Total disappearance—use and exports—this year seems to be around 4.1 billion. If use and exports increase to 4.3 billion in the year ahead, the carryover a year hence could swell to 1.3 billion bushels. Such an increase in the carryover would be the second largest increase on record. (The largest was back in 1948-49, when the carryover increased from a near record low of 123 million bushels to 813 million.)

Prices below support level. Most of the carryover stocks are in private ownership control. Of the total stocks on hand July 1 (1,735 million bushels), 74 percent was "free" corn. The CCC owned only 8 percent; 11 percent was 1966 corn under price-support loans; and 6 percent was older corn under resale price-support loans.

The switch from stock depletion in recent years to stock buildup has brought corn prices to—and below—the price-support loan level. The national average loan rate for the 1967 crop is $1.07 a bushel.

Only about half of the corn will be eligible for price-support loans this fall. In Illinois, only about one-third of the corn crop is qualified for price-support.

Need Illinois Reptiles For Museum Collection

SPRINGFIELD — A six-foot, four-inch black and yellow bull snake soon will take its place in the Illinois State Museum's exhibit, "Amphibians and Reptiles of Illinois." The snake, largest ever seen by the museum staff, was brought in by Frank Cantrall of Springfield, who found it near Bath.

The average bull snake is about five feet long and is one of the largest and most beneficial found on the prairies and Great Plains. It feeds almost exclusively on rats, mice, ground squirrels and rabbits. As many as 35 mice have been found in its stomach at one time.

The snake is a constrictor and, although small animals may be taken into the mouth and swallowed, larger rodents are killed by the snake's coils or by being pressed against the walls of their burrows by the invading predator.

The exhibit, "Amphibians and Reptiles of Illinois," was initiated by Edward A. Munyer, formerly of the museum staff. Dr. John R. Paul, zoology curator at the museum, who is supervising completion of the display, hopes to obtain specimen of the 16 turtles, six lizards and 36 snakes known to live in Illinois. After each specimen is cast in plastic, Glen Ives of the preparation department will paint the models in natural colors.

Species still needed to complete the exhibit include a hog-nose snake, rat snake, milk snake, great plains garter snake, five-lined skink and a siren salamander. Anyone interested in contributing amphibians or reptiles should obtain a complete list of species needed

Identification may be made with the aid of "Reptiles of Illinois" and "Amphibians of Illinois," both written by Dr. Paul W. Parmalee. These books are available from the Illinois State Museum for 53 and 26 cents, respectively. Checks or money orders should be made out to the Illinois State Museum Society.

A preview of some of the reptiles that will be in the exhibit can be seen in the museum foyer.

CORNBELT FARMERS can determine their corn yields before harvest with 95 percent accuracy using this new corn yield calculator developed by University of Illinois agricultural engineers. Fieldman Ken Umbarger counts the number of kernel rows and the kernels per row as Ralph Nave, agricultural engineer, makes settings on the calculator.

The calculator uses the number of ears per acre and the average size of ears to determine yields. Estimates can be made any time after pollination with more accurate estimates possible as the corn approaches maturity.

To measure yield, simply count the number of good ears in a length of row equal to 1/1,000 of an acre. The calculator has a chart giving the length of row to use for your particular row spacing. Then determine the size of the second, sixth and tenth ear by counting the rows of kernels and kernels per row on each ear. Set the ear size and the number of ears per 1/1,000 acre on the calculator to determine the yield.

Nave recommends one check every five acres for a more accurate yield estimate.

The corn yield calculator is available for 50 cents from Agricultural Engineering, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois 61801, or your local county farm adviser.

About 13 million, or more than 25 per cent of American families now earn $10,000 a year or more. The figure was 17 per cent in 1961.

While today's housewife spends more money for food, she actually spends a smaller percentage of her disposable income for food than was true 20 years ago. The percentage now is 18% compared with 25% then. The U.S.D.A. says that 66% of each dollar spent for food goes for marketing costs. That means that the farmer receives only 34 cents of each dollar that the housewife spends for food at her grocery store.

In twenty years food marketing costs have risen 45%. What does the housewife get for the 66 cents she spends for marketing costs? Included are convenience, frozen dinners, pre-seasoned vegetables in handy plastic bags, good parking facilities, well lighted stores, attractively displayed merchandise.

THE RISING COST OF EATING!

The American housewife who couldn't bend her ear for at least an hour about the rising cost of feeding her family is a rare woman indeed! There's no doubt about it. Food prices are rising, but not as much as it appears on the surface.

GOP OFFICIALS present Friday night for the annual Republican fund-raising dinner, from left: State Senator G. William Horsley; U.S. Senator Peter Dominick, featured speaker for the evening; Rep. Thomas C. Rose; Harris Rowe, Republican county chairman; and Albert Spreen, Republican candidate for county commissioner in the November 7 election.

Credibility Gap Will Be Key In '68 Campaign: Dominick

"The credibility gap on information coming from the White House will be the key issue in 1968," United States Senator Peter Dominick of Colorado declared Friday night before some 500 Republicans gathered at MacMurray dining hall for an annual fund raising dinner.

"The question of the validity of statements made by this administration has seriously affected our country's position in world leadership, not to mention the lack of confidence of a good percentage of people right here at home," Senator Dominick said.

"Federal money doesn't come down from the trees," he said. "It is first of all your tax money. We need new and creative methods of handling local problems."

"Tax credits for higher education is one example for which I have personally worked. The American people could use some of their own income to help their children and support educational institutions. Under this plan, they would support the institution of their own choice."

Senator Dominick related that national programs must be the same for all even though every state's problems and resources are different.

"The mood of the American people is such that we will see a sweep in 1968," he emphasized. "If we can only stay together, we will put a man in the White House with a big R beside his name."

The sixth annual fund-raising dinner sponsored by the Morgan County Republican Central Committee was held in the dining hall on the MacMurray college campus.

Rev. Reginald M. Harris gave the invocation and Dr. Gordon Michelson gave the benediction.

Republican County Chairman Harris Rowe presided during the evening and introduced a number of special guests, including State Senator G. William Horsley and Rep. Thomas C. Rose.

Albert H. Spreen, Republican candidate for county commissioner in the November 7th county election, was recognized by the group.

Rowe introduced party officials and officeholders to the group as well as county chairmen from surrounding counties.

Mrs. Jones, 83, Of White Hall Dies In City

Mrs. Eliza Jones, 83 year old resident of White Hall, died at 9:35 a.m. Friday at Holy Cross hospital where she became a patient the preceding day.

She was born at Walkerville July 26, 1884; daughter of William and Mary Ann Suttory Black. She was married April 15, 1906 to Walter Jones, who died Sept. 10, 1949.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Mary Jane Kearin of Norwalk, Calif.; Mrs. Mildred Walpole and Mrs. Margaret Elliott, both of Roodhouse; six grandchildren, one foster grandchild, four great-grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. Ella Sweetin of Roodhouse and a brother, John Black of Peoria.

The remains were removed to the Dawdy-Wolfe Funeral Home in White Hall where the family will meet friends from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. Sunday.

Funeral services are scheduled at 11 a.m. Monday at the First Baptist church in White Hall. Reverend E. Harris Paulson and Reverend Ben Bohn will officiate with interment to be in White Hall cemetery.

The counting of the seconds on clocks was made possible by the introduction of the pendulum clock by a Dutch watchmaker, Christian Huygens, in the 17th century.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

By STELLA

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 10 — Born today, you are mainly interested in those things that have a direct bearing on your work or your family. In fact, you are often quite unaware of what is going on in the outside world. This is a situation which you can remedy easily — and one which you should remedy if you are to make full use of your talents and abilities. No one can fulfill his potential who does not realize his own relationship to things around him — things beyond his own household or place of employment.

You can be a stimulating conversationalist, but you are inclined to be reticent rather than talkative. Perhaps for this reason, when you do open up and deliver yourself of an opinion, people sit up and take notice. Seldom do you speak without having thought over carefully what you want to say and how you want to say it; thus you seldom get yourself in hot water through the thoughtless word.

Your relationship to your own family is apt to appear distant to outsiders who do not know how unemotional you are. Actually, although you are not much for showing your affection, it runs deep and true, and those who are the recipients of it know full well the measure of your love and care.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, September 11
VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23) — Let your conscience be your guide — in business or professional matters as well as in the home. Keep standards high.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23) — Begin a new work week with a new attitude of optimism. You can get ahead faster than you think if you approach work right.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — A tight schedule demands that you be first of all efficient in all that you do today. Don't drive away success through sloppiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Consider others as you drive toward your present goal. The more people you run over — accidentally or on purpose — the more enemies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) — Don't give up present aims merely because of another's whim. After all, you're the one who has to do the work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — Make friends with an enemy. It isn't as hard to do as you might imagine — if you employ battery along with honest criticism.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21) — A day when you may well realize your own potential along lines you never before really investigated. An eye-opener.

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20) — Best to keep bad news to yourself for the time being. There's no reason to spoil another's day just to make yourself feel better.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21) — A day of real opportunity on the employment scene. Get ahead by putting a new idea into action and letting others know about it.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — Don't demand more of others than you would expect of yourself. Duty and love are both two-way streets, even where children are concerned.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — You can keep a minor setback from developing into a major disappointment if you want to. Let reason show you the way.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — Consult others when in doubt as to the way you should go. This is no time for trying to make decisions on important matters.

Roy Dyer Dies In South, Rites To Be Held Here

Roy Lukeman Dyer, 52, a former local resident who had lived in Dunedin, Fla. for the past eight years, passed away in Florida Thursday.

He was born at Pisgah July 17, 1915, son of R. L. and Grace Sadie Lukeman Dyer.

He is survived by his widow, Dorothy Johnson Dyer; one son, Roy L. Dyer Jr. of Las Vegas, Nev.; a brother, John of Grand Junction, Colo.; two sisters, Mrs. Edna Mae Haefner of Argyle, Ia. and Mrs. Allene Sisco of Burlington, Ia. and four grandchildren.

He was a member of the Dunedin American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Tarpon Springs, Fla., Elks club, the Fort Madison, Ia., Eagles lodge and United Commercial Travelers. He was also a member of St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Funeral services will be held at the Williamson Funeral Home at 1:30 p.m. Monday. Reverend William J. Boston officiating. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery at New Berlin.

A Scout's Observation of Juliette Low's Birthday Anniversary.

THE SCOUTER'S DILEMMA

I love my children, I'm telling you, And I know there's a lot of work to do In Scouts and Brownies and PTA But frankly, I just can't get away.

At the end of a day, I'm tired you know, Just want to go out and see a show, Or watch TV or play some bridge, Just too darned tired to mess with kids.

And speaking of kids, you know that crime is on the increase all the time? They ought to do something, maybe at school To teach the kids to respect a rule.

Or perhaps the church should do more good And teach them to act the way they should I can't understand why they act that way, Something's wrong somewhere I venture to say.

I send my kids to Scouts and such, But it really doesn't help too much; They don't appreciate good things at all, I used to be a Scout when I was small.

They need more volunteers you say? Must be plenty around — must be some way To interest parents in worthwhile work, That's something no one has a right to shirk.

Well, I hope they find someone, I'm telling you. My kids need a leader to look up to, They need someone to direct their play. It's really a shame I can't get away.

Indian Summer, the ideal time for scouting, is just around the corner. Troops are organizing throughout the Council. How about yours?

There will be a meeting of all Troop Organizers on Tuesday, September 12 at 10:00 to 11:30 a.m. at the Grace Methodist Church. Anyone who is unable to attend the morning session may attend an evening session. The evening meeting will be held at the home of Gladys Adams, 1439 Passavant Drive on Tuesday, September 12 at 7:00 p.m. It is very important that you attend one of these meetings.

A Leader training session will be given on Thursday, September 28, from 10:00 to 3:00 p.m. at Grace Methodist Church. Please use the Office door.

An Out Door Workshop will be held on Friday, October 6, at Camp Shagbark on Lake Jacksonville from 9:30 to 2:00 p.m. All leaders will return to Camp Shagbark at 5:30 p.m. at which time they will prepare their evening meal and stay overnight. They will be dismissed about 10:00 a.m. on October 7. Bette Jackson and Connie Roegge have been appointed by Gladys Adams to give this training. Gladys Adams is Chairman of the Troop Development Committee which was appointed by the Council President, Mary Louise McGinnis.

"These plans for helping leaders should make it possible for each one to learn what she needs, when she needs it, without wasting time on things she already knows."

The regular Board meeting of the Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council will be held next Wednesday, September 13, at 9:30 a.m. at the Scout Office.

Opening lead—♥ 5

In recent years Bob Barrett of Houston played only in his home town tournaments and attended as many Texas tournaments as he could. After all, when you get to be close to 80, tournaments can become quite a strain. His recent death leaves quite a gap in Texas bridge because he won many an event with his favorite partners, John Gerber, L. R. Robertson and the late George Heath.

Like most old-timers, Bob retained his skill as a dummy player and could pick up overtricks when the defense gave him a chance.

West's opening heart lead gave him such a chance even though East made the good play of the seven of hearts instead of the king. Bob won with the nine and led the nine of spades to East's jack. East's best play would have been a diamond but East played the six of clubs.

Bob won that trick with the ten and came up with a key play. He laid down his ace of hearts. Bob was sure that West did not open a four card suit and therefore East could have but one more heart. Bob didn't know it was the king but he didn't really care. He wanted to strip East of a potential exit card. When the king of hearts fell Bob played a heart to dummy's queen. He didn't mind setting up tricks for West because he wasn't going to let West in the lead any time. East had to let a diamond go. He could not afford to throw away a black card.

A club lead and queen finesse came next. Then Bob cashed his ace of clubs and led another club to East's king. He let a couple of dummy's diamonds go on those two clubs. East could do nothing but take his ace of diamonds and give up.

One no-trump making four isn't anything sensational in rubber bridge but this was worth a top score in an important duplicate game.

Turkey in the Bag

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor

Q—What is the best way to defrost a frozen turkey?

A—Defrosting a frozen turkey in the refrigerator is a time-consuming chore. Thawing at room temperature can cause bacteria to multiply rapidly. Department of Agriculture specialists, however, have just come up with a workable new idea: Thawing frozen turkeys at room temperature in closed paper bags keeps the temperature low enough to protect quality. This method is more convenient than thawing in a household refrigerator or under tap water. If the bird is kept in its plastic wrap and placed in a paper bag at room temperature, the atmosphere inside the bag will be only slightly warmer than the atmosphere in the refrigerator, they say. Thus, the bird can be thawed completely without exposing the surface to temperature higher than 55 degrees. Large birds (20-25 pounds) should be allowed about 16 hours thawing time; smaller ones (8-12 pounds) should be allowed about 12 hours. Be sure to refrigerate or cook the turkey within one to three hours after thawing, the researchers advise.

Q—Just what is a navel orange? I'm confused.

A—Navel oranges are medium to large, thick-skinned oranges, good for eating out-of-hand and also ideal for serving sliced or sectioned. They have a characteristic puckered appearance at bloom end. The peel crystallizes well and makes a good marmalade. The reason is from October to December. The California season, however, extends from October through April.

AVIATION & SPACE DICTIONARY

anyone with a layman's knowledge of aviation and space can understand.

The book also includes numerous black and white photographs, an Appendix with tables of mathematical equations and other information that is useful in the aerospace field. Much of the information in these tables will be useful in other non-aviation and space related areas.

Over 10,000 Items Since this is a dictionary and not an encyclopedia the definitions, over 10,000 of them, are necessarily brief. As with other dictionaries this may result in the user having to look up two or more words in order to understand the first one he looked up.

However, the book does not list what part of speech (verb, noun, etc.) a word is. It also includes pronunciations only if the word is unusual. For example: Declage (da'-ka'-lazz).

The Aviation and Space Dictionary is actually the fourth edition of this volume. The earlier editions, the first of which was published before World War II, were titled Aviation Dictionary and Reference guide.

The Editors, Ernest J. Gentle, and Charles E. Chapel, have added some 3,000 new terms to the book. These, and the other 7,000 terms, include definitions in the areas of: Atomic Energy, Commercial Aviation, Electronics, General Aviation, Guided Missiles, Helicopters, Jet Aircraft, Meteorology, Military Aviation, Navigation, Ordnance, Private Aviation Radar, Rockets, Spacecraft, Stress Analysis, and Television.

The Editors have endeavored to "make this volume as complete and up-to-date as possible and keep 'the standard authority of aviation (and now space) terms."

In barely ten years the Space Age has added a whole new list of words to our vocabulary. These terms are often used with an even larger list that has grown up in the over fifty years of aviation.

All these terms, from Abandon to Z-Type Marker are defined in Aero Publisher's Aviation and Space Dictionary. These terms are defined in language that

Let's Go Birding

Yellow-Headed Blackbirds

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Blackbirds and Starlings make up a large part of our bird population. We are particularly aware of this fact in the fall when great flocks blacken the fields and dead trees, or close out the sky when they are frightened from the marshes and fields. We hear the raucous chatter of Common Grackles, Red-winged Blackbirds, Brown-headed Cowbirds, Starlings, and sometimes a few Rusty Blackbirds.

Among all of this clutter of black birds we often search for a Yellow-headed Blackbird; but, as yet, we have failed in finding even one. If a male were present, we couldn't possibly overlook him. He has been called the Beau Brummel of the Icteridae family. He wears a glossy black coat; over his head, around his neck, and down his chest he displays a rich yellow mantle. On each shoulder he also reveals a large, showy epaulette of white. Sometime we may possibly find one; the Chicago area usually has a few.

On our visit in the Tetons in July we hoped to find a few, for we had seen a limited number on previous visits. We also understood that they were gregarious; that they preferred fresh marshes, where they built their woven nests in the reeds; and that they foraged in fields and open country. We worked but had no luck.

Then as we were leaving the village of Jackson in Jackson Hole, we had a big surprise. At the outskirts of the village was a picnic area near the road; three large refuse cans full of discarded paper napkins, pop bottles, cups, and food stood along the edge of the pavement. They were ugly but convenient, but soon became beautiful to us.

Why did our point of view change so suddenly? A Yellow-headed Blackbird flew in, took his position on the brim of a trash can, and explored the mess for some dainties. Soon two more Beau Brummels appeared, and a small flock of the drabber females and immatures arrived, all of them scolding and nudging one another for a place at the dining table. Jealous of these diners, Brewer Blackbirds, a Grackle, and a Red-winged Blackbird paced around the cans.

We watched our fill. Then we drove on to our cabin at Colter Bay Village, passing marshes and fields where these birds should have been but saw none. It seems that abundant food easy to find will call birds as well as people.

Through A Storm

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Editor's note: Mrs. Dorr here retells part of Chapter XIV from Charles Dickens' "Pickwick Papers." Part 1 appeared on this page last Sunday.

Part 2: Not Cheap Veneer "Have a little respect for me," came the quick retort. "Don't you see I am solid mahogany By no means cheap veneer!" then more quietly, "You might help me."

"Amazed Tom inquired "How?" There was a long pause, then the chair held up one foot. "Long ago a good friend made these slippers for me, nothing has ever been so comfortable, she embroidered this vest too; now it is frayed and horsehair stuffing will push out, but isn't it handsome!" Sadly he wiped one eye with his elbow then tucked his arm back at his side. "I am the last of my family," he finished dismally.

"Was it a large one?" Tom inquired kindly.

All Gone Now "Once there were twelve, handsome straight backed fellows; all gone now—and there is a patch in my back that weakens me but," and his voice grew firm. "You saw that black eyed rascal down stairs, he wants my ward the innkeeper, to sell this property. You know where I would be, in some dingy second hand store, and worse yet my ward would never see the sale money! He would disappear with it all!!!! Now help us."

"What could I do?" mystified Tom questioned. "In the right hand corner of that wardrobe, you will find a letter exposing this adventurer. Get it."

Old Face Dims Before Tom's eyes the wrinkled face dimmed into shadows, there was only an ancient chair with a worn cushion and red covered knob feet, standing at his bedside in the firelight. Tom dropped back on his pillows confused, nor did he rouse until morning. Still the great chair waited close by.

"Hello, how are you, old boy?" but there was no answer. He began to worry.

"What about that sale," he wondered then walked across the room to the wardrobe where a key hung in the lock turning easily for his questing hand to find the promised letter. The wording was clear, definitely the sale could be stopped.

Tom Acts Dressing quickly, Tom hastened down stairs to his small breakfast table. Directly the inn keeper appeared to ask "Will you have ham or—" only to hear Tom saying, "Sit down a moment!" as he held out the letter.

It's disclosures led to a frightened decision. "I will not sell my inn." The shifty-eyed stranger prepared to leave, hastened Tom who booted him out the front door.

When the weather cleared Vixen, now frisky, was hitched to the light brown gig with red wheels and Tom went on his way, but the ancient chair stood confidently at the hearth, never again known to disturb a lodger's sleep.

Prayer Poem

Praise His Holy Name

By Mary Pence Claywell

Praises to Thee, Lord Almighty, Balm for sorrow, woe, and pain. . . Though it irks the evil-minded.

Just to hear Thy Holy Name: None are worthy of Thy Blessings.

None can pay their debt, 'tis true.

Yet, Holy men, Lord, sing Thy Praises.

Witness, as You Told them to: Often do, men's evil hearts, Lord.

When Your Precious Name is heard,

Feel, somehow, it's meant for them, Lord.

Though their thoughts may be absurd.

There's a saying, old and famous.

Old school masters used to say . . .

"If the shoe fits, you can wear it."

"If not, kick it out of way."

Much of Wisdom's in the saying . . .

And though none of us can boast.

Yet, folk who resent Thy Praises,

Often, Dear Lord . . . need Thee, MOST.

Teen Scene

If I Had A Million

By Christine Hembrough

Now and then everyone has wished that he had a million dollars to spend on anything that he wanted. I haven't got a million dollars, and if I ever do, it'd be a miracle, but I can pretend that I have a million dollars. Why not come along as I go shopping, and see if my choices are the same as yours would be. (Write and tell me either yes or no.)

The first thing I'd buy would be a car. I don't know what type but it'd be a 1968 blue car with four doors, air conditioning, power brakes and steering, stereo tapes, good heating, good lighting, and best of all in perfect working condition and guaranteed.

Then, I'd buy two air conditioners for our house, not that we need them now—but they're nice to have around.

Next, I'd go out and buy a beautiful color television. It'd have to be very elegant in style to sit in our living room. And of course, it would have to work.

Clothes, Clothes, Clothes

Then, I think I'd buy myself some movable closet so that I could put all of the new clothes that I'd buy in there. Oh, I'd buy everything. I'd need at least ten pants dresses, coat dresses, and mohair sweaters and just plain simple A line dresses.

I'd have about fifty new coordinating outfits — about ten pants suits and matching skirts will do plus plenty of blouses, and skirts, and so on and so on.

New Luggage Of course, I'd have to have some new luggage either white or blue with locks. Then, I'd probably go all around the world by plane. I'd visit lots of places like the Taj Mahal, London, Paris, Rome, Madrid, The Louvre, Ancient Greece, Jerusalem, New York and Broadway and lots of magazines and modeling agencies, and California and Hollywood, and Florida and Miami Beach, and Expo 67, and the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans. Gee, I'd go everywhere.

By now, I've probably spent a million and am broke again if not in debt for another million! Gee, I'd buy so many things and it'd be so much fun. I wish I had a fairy godmother or a rich uncle or something who'd give me a million, don't you? What would you buy with your money? Wouldn't it be WUNDARFEEL?

DON'T FORGET To send in your questions, suggestions, ideas, and comments. Address Teen Scene, Junior Page, Jacksonville Journal Courier, Jacksonville, Ill. 62650. It'd sure be nice.

Circus Time

By John Rankin

Part 2: Rough Cat

Al has been counting on his uncle taking him to the circus, but his uncle is a doctor and was called out to help a sick person in the night.

Al gave Aunt Clara a questioning look across the table. "Did he say anything about going to the circus, maybe?"

"Oh he's been planning on it all along," she said, "but now I'm afraid he is going to be much too busy for such things today. Even now, several patients are waiting in the office for him, and old Mrs. Hinkle down the road is having dizzy spells and can't leave the house. And on top of all that the Jackson children up Briar Fork way are sick again. The twins are in bed with the croup and an older one is laid up with the summer chills and fever."

One thing about these good hill country folks. Somebody always pin-pointed the patients' ailments before sending for a doctor. This had never bothered Doctor McGraw, however. In his own jovial way he had come to accept it as a way of life in the hills.

After breakfast Al went outside to play around in the yard awhile. He soon tired of this however, and decided to try his hand at catching butterflies that were feeding at this time of day on the wild flowers growing along the dust-covered road. It was a lot of fun to hold a brightly colored butterfly fluttering in his cupped hands a moment, and then turn him loose unharmed to fly away away and disappear in the glare of the sun.

Eventually, this fascinating pastime took Al a short distance up the road from the house. For the most part he had forgotten about the circus; at least for the time being, until he looked back and saw Uncle Doc's horse standing at the hitching post in front of the office. This meant he'd be taking out again as soon as he got rid of all those people in there. Why did everybody have to get sick or something on this very special day anyway?

For a long while then, Al stood unmoving in the middle of the dusty road gazing wistfully in the direction of the village at the foothills of the great Clinch Mountains to the north. He was within a scant mile of all the glamor and excitement that went on at a big circus. Just thinking about it was breathtaking, and in his mind's eye even now he could see the wild animals, and daring acrobats performing on the high wires and painted clowns doing crazy stunts in the center of the arena.

The sound of footsteps in front of him startled Al momentarily. He had been so wrapped in thought he had failed to notice that a rather strange looking man had approached to within a few feet of him. A glance told Al that he was badly in need of a doctor. His face was pale and drawn and his scarlet-tinted white shirt lay in tattered shreds over his limp body. Something sharp and dreadful had left a gaping flesh wound down his left arm from the shoulder to his fingertips!

Al was looking him over closely as he came on. He had seen a lot of men that had emerged from a fight with pretty severe knife wounds for Uncle Doc to sew up. But this newcomer, whoever he was, looked like somebody had worked him over with a big butcher knife or a meat cleaver maybe!

The stranger was the first to speak. "I'm looking for the doctor, boy," he said in a strained voice. His face looked even whiter now as he stood full in the glare of the hot sun.

About an hour later Alvin was out at the road in front of the house when the patient emerged from Uncle Doc's office. A white bandage covered his injured arm and the color had returned to his face as he came striding down the walk at a brisk pace.

He greeted Al with a smile as he came on and paused for a brief chat. "Your uncle fixed me up in great shape, sonny," he said, pointing to his neatly bandaged arm. "I was feeling pretty sick when you first saw me, though. That big cat really worked me over."

Al gave him a questioning look. "A cat?" he said with a look of disbelief on his face. "Never thought a little old cat could do all that, Mister."

"But this was a lion, sonny," the friendly newcomer said with a wry grin. "I'm with the circus in town and . . ."

"Hey, I know who you are now, Mister," Al exclaimed. "You're the great wild animal trainer with the circus that everybody's been talking about."

"I've handled a lot of the big cats in my day, sonny," he acknowledged with a modest smile. "But even the best of us get a bit careless at times," he added, and hurried on down the road toward the village. At the crest of a hill he looked back with a waving farewell gesture and was gone.

Al turned back and started to the house. He hadn't made it to the circus, but that didn't matter now. He had been in close touch with a man that had been attacked by a lion. That in itself seemed rewarding enough.

CHURCH BEFORE TAVERN

NEW YORK (AP) — Religion preceded drinking in the city's construction industry, according to New York City's official Little Green Book.

The 1967 edition said the first wooden church was built in 1633, while the "first tavern, or public meeting place," was built in 1642.

The "waal," which gave famed Wall Street its name, was erected in 1653—the year in which New Amsterdam, with about 800 population, was incorporated as a city.

Business — Market Wrapup

Week In Business

Long-Expected Strike Idles Ford; Others Continue Day-To-Day

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Assembly lines ground to a halt in Ford Motor Co. plants across the country this past week when the United Auto Workers Union called its long-expected strike.

General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. continued operations on a day-to-day basis although their union contracts expired along with Ford's at midnight Wednesday.

Ford and UAW negotiators were far apart on the issues involved when the strike deadline arrived, and indications were that the strike would be a long one.

The union had picked Ford as its target company for negotiations on a contract which would set a pattern for the rest of the industry.

The strike pulled 159,000 UAW members off their jobs at plants in 25 states and halted production as Ford was moving full speed into its 1968 model output.

If the strike is prolonged, its effects would spread into the steel, railroad and trucking industries upon which the automakers rely heavily for materials and transportation.

President Johnson has said he feared the strike would damage the nation's economy.

The main issues between the union and the companies include a general wage increase, an additional increase for skilled tradesmen, a guaranteed annual income, pay parity for Canadian auto workers, and higher pensions.

Workers in the automobile industry as a whole average $3.41 an hour with benefits paid by Ford, General Motors and Chrysler raising their workers to $4.70 an hour.

Ford made an offer which it figured amounted to a minimum increase of 36 cents an hour over three years for a typical production worker.

The company estimated that union demands would amount to $4 additional hourly.

Ford said the walkout would cost its striking workers a total of $5.2 million a day in wages, or about $33 per striker.

The UAW has a strike fund of $76 million to pay benefits of $20 to $40 weekly.

The strike had an immediate impact on automobile production, cutting Ford's output this past week to 13,942 cars. Industry output was estimated at 115,400, down 17 per cent from last week.

Auto production in August rose 91 per cent to 280,305 cars from 146,549 a year earlier, when the start on new models was later. Sales in August fell 15 per cent to 518,970 cars from 607,622 in August 1966.

The Johnson administration said this past week that its forecast of "a strong economic expansion" in the second half of this year and into 1968 had been confirmed by "every recent piece of economic information."

It added that the latest economic statistics also provided an "unwelcome but convincing indication of inflationary pressures ahead."

But, the report continued, with the 10 per cent income tax surcharge sought by the administration "there is good prospect of keeping the growth of demand within a pace that can be matched by production."

On the other hand, a report that businesses again have reduced their planned capital spending increase for this year was considered ammunition for opponents of a tax boost.

The Commerce Department estimated capital outlays for this year at $62.03 billion, up 2.3 per cent from the record $60.63 billion in 1966. But this gain would be far short of the 16.7 per cent increase last year.

The Labor Department reported that the unemployment rate fell in mid-August to 3.8 per cent of the labor force from 3.9 per cent in mid-July. It said this was evidence of renewed economic expansion.

Jobless persons totaled 2,942,000 in August, compared with 3.25 million in July. The employment total dipped to 76.17 million from 76,221,000.

Construction spending rose in July for the third consecutive month, according to the Commerce Department. The $75.4-billion annual rate was up from $74.4 billion in June and $73.1 billion July 1966.

Steel production last week increased 1.1 per cent to 2,428,000 tons from 2,401,000 tons the previous week.

Stock Market Posts Small Gain Despite Strike Against Ford

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market embarked last week on the risky post-Labor Day phase of the year and emerged unscathed.

Despite a strike against Ford Motor Co., the market actually posted a small gain.

Wall Street displayed an underlying spirit of confidence, buoyed by the inflationary implications of price increases for a number of products and reports by White House economists that there is new evidence of strong economic expansion in the months ahead.

The Dow Jones industrial average last week rose 6.36 points to 997.54, but appeared to have some difficulty piercing the level around 908 which is a theoretical line of resistance.

The pace of trading picked up noticeably. Volume for the four-day week, cut short by Monday's Labor Day holiday, was 36,070,550 shares compared with 36,141,080 for the full five-day week previous.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .9 points to 335.6, for its second straight weekly advance.

The strike against Ford—was called at midnight Wednesday—was an event well anticipated by the stock market. The initial impact was very slight. On the final trading day, however, there was some evidence of growing awareness that the strike could have a depressing effect.

The strike against Ford—called at midnight Wednesday—was an event well anticipated by the stock market. The initial impact was very slight. On the final trading day, however, there was some evidence of growing awareness that the strike could have a depressing effect.

Of 1,597 issues traded during the week on the New York Stock Exchange, 813 rose and 843 fell.

One analyst said, "While a Ford Motor strike could slow the economic upturn at this time, it is more likely to defer demand until later in the year and contribute to possible boom conditions in the first quarter of 1968."

Government and corporate bond prices advanced the past week while municipals drifted lower. Aggressive bidding for new issue corporate bonds caused yields to decline to the lowest level in a month.

Late Wheat Rally Stops 4-Week Slump In Grain Futures

By ED DE MOCH
CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures reversed a declining price pattern of four weeks on the Chicago Board of Trade during the week, closing mostly higher when trade came to an end Friday.

Corn and soybeans futures closed lower, while oats showed improvement but rye prices closed on an irregular tone.

Soybean oil and soybean meal ended the week on a mixed tone, but choice steer prices closed lower.

When trade closed for the week, wheat futures were unchanged to ½ of a cent a bushel higher, September 1.45½; corn was ¾ to 1½ cents lower, September 1.19½-½; oats were ½ to 1 cent higher, September 70½ cents; rye was ¾ lower to 1 cent higher, September 1.15½; and soybeans were ½ to 3 cents a bushel lower, September 2.75¼-½.

Soybean oil closed 9 points lower to 21 points higher, September 9.14-15; soybean meal closed 10 to 70 cents lower, October 28.00.

Trade in commodities was relatively heavy after the Labor Day holiday with most contracts showing advances in the first two days of trade. Support for higher prices came mostly from buyers for export houses and some commercial interests.

An indication of the broadening trade in wheat was a report issued Wednesday on the amount held in all five contracts. The Commodity Exchange Authority of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which reports the open interest and volume of trade every day, stated that the open interest in wheat Wednesday totaled 245,985,000 bushels, compared to the record holding, set Oct. 16, 1929, totaling 248,294,000 bushels.

The speculative interest in wheat was attributed by trade sources to elevators and processors who hedge by selling futures against purchases of the cash product from farmers.

As the cash grain is being used up and hedges are being lifted, prices should move ahead, trade sources said.

While corn and soybeans production this year also will reach proportion with wheat, trade in these commodities was less active. Both corn and soybeans tended to decline on continuing word of improving harvests and growing conditions.

Corn futures set seasonal lows in the four deferred deliveries. Soybean oil and soybean meal showed some renewed vigor early in the week, but prices declined under a lack of trade later in the week.

Mrs. Bridges' name was selected from 160,000 entries last Thursday evening.

Malone Promoted —

General Telephone Has Reorganization

A major reorganization involving the combination of two divisions was announced Friday by Operating Vice President Richard C. Ross. James L. Malone, West Central Division Manager, will become manager of the merged operations, eventually to be known as the Central Division and headquartered in Normal.

In making the announcement, Ross explained that the organization change is being made to implement certain operating efficiencies. "The combining of the East Central and West Central Division operations will be gradual—phased over several months—and every effort will be made to prevent unnecessary dislocation of personnel involved," Ross pointed out.

Malone's appointment to the position of East Central Division Manager will take effect October 1, at which time he will become responsible for the operation of both divisions. Existing division identity will be maintained for an indefinite period, pending the ultimate consolidation of the two.

In discussing the organizational change, Ross paid tribute to the West Central Division's performance record, emphasizing that the forthcoming merger is a function of organizational streamlining.

It is anticipated that the West Central Division office will become the Jacksonville district office once the merger is accomplished.

Malone is also president of the Jacksonville Area Chamber of Commerce.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market Friday failed to sustain an advance it held in mid-session and ended irregularly with some, but not all, indicators pointing lower. Trading was active.

Volume was 9.31 million compared with 8.88 million shares Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost .63 at 907.4. It showed a gain of 1.45 in early afternoon.

At the end, 602 stocks were lower and 596 higher of the 1,450 traded on the New York Stock Exchange. There was a slight plurality of gainers in earlier trading. New highs totaled 81 and new lows 18.

The market, which has shrugged off the start of a strike against Ford Motor, was apparently beginning to have some qualms—especially in advance of a weekend when the budget of news always entails risk.

The impact of the nationwide strike against Ford was rippling through other industries and fear of a long walkout mounted.

The performance of most blue chips was drab. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell .5 to 335.6 with industrials off .5, rails off .6 and utilities off .2.

It was a different story among the 15 most active stocks where a lively speculative spirit was displayed. Eleven of those advanced, two declined and two more were unchanged.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were irregularly higher. Volume was 4.68 million shares compared with 4.27 million Thursday.

PITTSFIELD Community Sale

PITTSFIELD, ILLINOIS

A history of salaries that were low in relation to training required has erupted into strikes and walkouts by teachers in recent years as they seek higher wages and benefits. The information above, from the U.S. Office of Education, shows the range of teacher salaries from the turn of the century to a 1967 estimate by the National Education Assn. The figures shown are average annual salaries for all instructional personnel, including classroom teachers, principals, supervisors, librarians and counselors.
